MANDAN GIRL HIKER IS KILLED IN MONTANA

AUTO PLUNGES 50 FEET FROM MONTANA ROAD

Miss Grace Allen, on Way
West with Girl Companion,
Instantly Killed

OTHERS THROWN TO SIDE

Escape Death While Mandan
Girl Is Victim—Parents
Were in Canada

Bozeman, Mont., Aug. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Grace Allen of Mandan who with a girl companion was hiking west, was instantly killed when an automobile in which they were riding went off the road between Livingston and Bozeman. The car fell 50 feet, throwing the other two occupants out but pinning the Allen girl underneath.

Grace Allen, reported killed in an automobile accident near Bozeman, Montana, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Allen of Mandan. She graduated from the Mandan high school class of 1924 and had been attending the Dickinson Normal School during the summer months preparatory to teaching this fall. It is believed that at the close of the school year, in company with a school friend, she started west on a hiking adventure.

Her parents are visiting in Canada, but are expected to return tonight. From the nature of the dispatch, it is assumed that the girls had accepted "lifts" from tourists.

MAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN BOX

Wealthy Pennsylvania Manufacturer Is Victim

New York, Aug. 23.—A tin box in a Greenwich village basement gave up the body of Aaron Graff, wealthy manufacturer of Wilkes Barre, Pa., and furnished the homicide squad another gruesome murder mystery to solve.

Graff, missing since Aug. 1, had been strangled. His limbs had been hacked off and crammed, with the rest of his body, into a galvanized tin container four feet long. Blanks had been stuffed around him, the lid of the box had been sealed with shellac, and over all had been poured a thick coating of wax and plaster of paris.

A tiny hole in the box released an odor of decomposition which days ago caused residents of the building to complain to health authorities. This morning detectives, who for weeks had been searching for Graff, traced the odor to the basement and thence to the box.

The dead man was a manufacturer of radio cabinets. The basement where his body was found was occupied by the family of John Logasy, a carpenter and caretaker from whom Graff purchased cabinets in the rough. Logasy is reported by his wife to have been missing since Aug. 9 and a general alarm was broadcast tonight for his arrest.

Graff was 72 years old.

CERTIFICATE OF SHERIFF NOT GOOD ON CROP

Minot, N. D., Aug. 23.—The holder of a sheriff's certificate to farm land on which a mortgage has been foreclosed is not entitled to share in the crop grown by the former owner during the year of redemption permitted by law, according to a decision rendered recently by Judge J. C. Lowe of Minot. The ruling promises to be of great interest in North Dakota because of frequent recurrences of the same question.

The opinion of the local jurist was given in a Mountrail county action in which the Minnesota Moline Flour company appeared as plaintiff, seeking foreclosure of a chattel mortgage against Carl M. Elgin, and the First National bank of Van Hook appeared as defendants with Elgin. The issue on which the decision was made concerned the claim of the First National bank of Harvey as interpleaded defendant, which institution was the holder of the sheriff's certificate on Elgin's farm.

N. D. SUGAR BEETS HELD
BETTER THAN IOWA PRODUCT
Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 22.—Sugar beets grown in the Red river valley are superior to those grown in Iowa, according to R. B. Marshall, experimenting expert of the Northern Sugar company of Mason City, Iowa, who has been here recently examining crops for his company.

Indications are that an excellent crop will be produced in the valley this year, Mr. Marshall said.

PERSHING IN HIS LAST REVIEW

General John J. Pershing is seen here (in the foreground, a little to the left) reviewing Illinois national guardsmen in training at Camp Grant, Rockford. It probably will be the last time he ever will ride up and down before his troops again, for Pershing is laying aside his sword. The War Department's age limit necessitates his retirement as chief of staff Sept. 15.

Wilbur, former resident of Jamestown will be a visitor of this city next Tuesday when he stops here enroute to Seattle, where he will sail with the U. S. fleet from Port Angeles, on Labor Day, according to word received here. He will arrive here on the N. DAWES HITS KU KLUX KLAN

Augusta, Me., Aug. 23.—Charles C. Dawes, the Republican nominee for vice-president declared in an address today that he was "opposed to the Ku Klux Klan, although he realized that many had become members in the interest of law and order."

FR. FLANAGAN'S BOYS GREETED BY BIG CROWD

Father Flanagan's boys, appearing at the city Auditorium last night, were greeted by a packed house. The boys, with their vaudeville skills and concert band, entertained the large crowd throughout. The work of Father Flanagan, who established a boys' home in Omaha, to receive boys of any race or creed, was explained to the crowd. The boys were to appear again tonight.

PROBE VALUE OF LIGNITE COAL FOR OIL EXTRACTED FROM IT

A new investigation of possible uses of lignite coal is being made by the United States Bureau of Mines, it was learned today. A representative of the federal bureau recently covered western North Dakota coal fields and obtained numerous samples of lignite, to be tested for the percentage of oil that may be extracted.

The samples, each weighing 50 to 75 pounds, will be taken to Pittsburgh where chemists of the federal

ANOTHER TOWN ARMS ITSELF

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 23.—Manvel is organized against bandits, making the third town in Grand Forks county to become thus organized. Larimore and Northwood also having completed plans for ousting any bandits who may show up this fall.

The organization at Manvel was completed Wednesday shortly after State's Attorney J. B. Wineman and Sheriff Odin Overby had visited the town and had pointed out the facts of the case in the presence of business men and residents hastily called together.

Twenty-two volunteers signed up to act as night-watchmen and two substitutes were listed. The night patrol there started recently with two armed men on duty, the plan calling for each two men to serve only one night in eleven.

FIRST STARK COUNTY YIELD IS EXCELLENT

Over 27 Bushels to Acre of Marquis Wheat Is Made on 15 Acre Farm

Dickinson, Aug. 23.—First new wheat to be marketed in Dickinson this year was threshed Thursday by F. A. Meyer of South Dickinson and hauled directly to the elevator. From 15 acres of the old Jack McDonough farm inside the city limits to the south, Mr. Meyer threshed 402 bushels of Marquis, machine measure. The elevator weight, dockage deducted, was 410 bushels, making the average yield per acre 27 1/3 bushels. The first load of 112 bushels hauled to the elevator cut less than a dollar for $1.12. Being cut less than a week, the wheat was a little damp. Consequently the grade was lower than it would otherwise have been.

Yields from nearby rye fields threshed during the week indicate a general yield ranking considerably above the average for the past several years. A 60 acre field on the N. C. Longdon farm northwest of the city showed a machine run of slightly above 20 bushels per acre.

Wheat harvest is now so advanced in Stark county that rust, which has developed rapidly during the past week, has been able to do little damage. Threshing of wheat and oats will begin next week. Corn is maturing slowly; flax will yield better than usual, from all indications, and there is an exceptionally large acreage in the county this year.

A heavy hailstorm south of Hebron did much damage, but territory around Dickinson escaped the hail entirely.

FORKS RATE PROBE OPENS

GREAT CROWDS EXPECTED HERE ON 'AUTO DAY'

5,000 Invitations Are Sent Out By Bismarck Advertising Club

PLANNING ON EVENTS

A week from today, August 30, will see one of the biggest crowds it has ever been the pleasure of Bismarck to entertain. From personal talks with a number of farmers around the county the past few days, it looks like everyone was going to come to town, according to members of the Advertising club. There have been over 5000 personal invitations sent out to every car owner outside of Bismarck within a radius of thirty and forty miles of Bismarck and throughout Burleigh, Morton, Emmons, and parts of Oliver, McLean and Kidder counties. There will be fully 500 country cars in town that day.

The automobile and supply dealers of the city will have the days events in charge and they are all working to get a big crowd to town. It will, without doubt, be the most successful event of the kind ever held in the city.

There will be several hundred cars in the big parade with two bands. Many of the cars will be gaily decorated and they will all be filled with a total of hundreds and hundreds of people from the surrounding country. It will do your hearts good to see them as everyone is feeling so good this year.

There are going to be a lot of automobile stunts and other contests held on the streets of interest to everyone and with a lot of fun connected with them.

To Have Parade
Every youngster from the country and from town should follow the very last car in the parade as from it will be distributed thousands of lollypops and several hundred toy balloons for the kids.

Curtis Dirlam and his clown band will be on the streets after the parade to furnish music and fun for everyone down town.

It is hoped that everyone in town will make this a real gala day, and everyone who can should come down town and help entertain our guests from all the surrounding country. Make them feel at home, give them all the "glad hand" and try to make our farmer friends think of Bismarck as being "their" town.

The work of the Advertising Club this summer has been along the lines of trying to bring the farmers and the townspeople closer together socially. During the past few years there has been a great deal of misunderstanding on both sides. It has been largely a state of mind with really nothing back of it and judging by talks with a great many people the efforts of the Advertising Club have met with very good results.

Several farmers have told us that since we inaugurated these days the merchants have been more cordial and have acted much differently from the way they had in the past. Some of the merchants have told us that the farmers had been different. There is no secret about it. It is largely a matter of business.

DARROW AGAIN PLEADS MERCY BEFORE COURT

Veteran Criminal Lawyer
Condemns Hanging as a Relic of Barbarity

COURTROOM IS SILENT

Even "Silent" Typewriters
Are Heard During the Tense Moments

Chicago, Aug. 23, (By the A. P.)—Clarence S. Darrow today again matched his eloquence, logic and philosophy in an appeal to Judge John R. Caverly for mercy toward Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb.

Before a packed court room in a stillness that was punctuated by a muffled click of "silent" typewriters, the grizzled veteran of the bar talked to the gray-haired judge, pleading for mercy for "two diseased minds" picturing the situation condemned to a life-time living in a cell and denouncing the barbarity of hanging in general and in this case in particular.

There was fiery denunciation, too, of the testimony given by state witnesses, particularly Dr. William Krohn.

"The crime was so aimless that the defendants did not even have a definite victim in mind," Mr. Darrow said, and he pictured Loeb picking first one boy and then another "hunt for killing but not knowing where he would go or whom he would get."

"And I get a picture, too, of Dr. Krohn going in and out of court for 16 years," said Mr. Darrow, "slaying his victims without regard to their age or sex or circumstances. But he had a motive. It was cash," and the last word exploded as it rang in the tense atmosphere.

Mr. Darrow was not burdened with free access to his suspenders and frequently rested his gesticulating hands by hooking the thumbs into his trousers' supports.

Early in his address Mr. Darrow stated his point of yesterday that the crime was senseless, without object or motive, that could not be understood unless it was explained on the defense basis of mental sickness.

A Senseless Thing
"The killing of Bobby Franks was a senseless thing, an unreasonable, unexplainable and foolish act that could have been conceived and executed only by a diseased mind."

Mr. Darrow, 67-year-old veteran of criminal court battles, in the beginning of his plea yesterday afternoon.

"Why did they kill little Bobby Franks?" asked the gray haired pleader, pointing a shaking forefinger at the judge. "Not for money. They had that. Not for spite. Not for hate. They killed him as they might kill a fly or a spider, for the experience."

"Because somewhere," and here the strident tone sank to a pitch of regret, "in the infinite processes that go to making of the boy or the man, something slipped. And now these unfortunate lads sit here hated, despised, outcast, and with the community shouting for their blood."

The appeal proved too much for the self control of the culprit. Throughout most of the afternoon they sat tense, Loeb following every movement of the pleader, Leopold growing pale beneath his customary ruddy flush.

Boys Break Down
But when Mr. Darrow's eloquence pictured disgrace to the families, the grief of mothers, the sorrow of fathers, the blasted hope for the boys themselves, Dickie flicked tears from his cheeks, and Leopold stumbled from the courtroom with bowed head.

So overcome was the latter that he struck blindly against a partition narrowing the entrance to the "bull pen" the impact drove him sideways, but he did not raise his head. With extended arms he plowed past the bailiffs and fairly plunged into the elevator which was waiting to convey him to the approach of Cook county's "bridge of sighs."

Judge Caverly leaned forward resting his chin upon his clasped hands and riveting his eyes upon the speaker. But what went on behind the judicial mask was not visible.

Millions Handicap
At the outset of his argument, Mr. Darrow declared that the millions of dollars possessed by his client's families had been a positive handicap to the defense. He spoke of the attitude of local newspapers which, he charged, had inflamed public opinion against Leopold and Loeb.

"There are times when poverty is fortunate and this is one of those times," he said. "Wildly extravagant stories were published without basis of fact. They said this was to be an effort to save the two boys by the use of money."

Mr. Darrow denied that, pointing out that the experts called by the defense were to receive fees based upon their regular charges for professional services, and that he and Berlin, Aug. 23.—The London conference for launching the Dawes reparations plan gave Germany a chance which is not likely to be renewed if she rejects it.

That was Chancellor Marx's warning to the Reichstag today in a carefully phrased statement of the London negotiations.

The Chancellor's speech, which was to have been read yesterday at the session, but which was held up on account of the Communist riots, was a plain spoken appeal to the Reichstag conscience to carefully consider the alternative in the event it decided to reject the agreement made by the German delegation in London.

"Who will insure that it will be possible to reimburse American participation which under the slogan of the Dawes report has at last come from its slowness and is an essential party to the pact, if it now fails of ratification?" asked the Chancellor.

U. S. Raleigh Reports That

Search For Missing Man

Aboard the U. S. S. Richmond, Aug. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Lieut. Locatelli, Italian trans-Atlantic aviator, who started with the American world fliers on their Iceland to Greenland Hop, was still missing with companions at 8 o'clock this morning.

The U. S. S. Raleigh, one of the searching vessels, reports that it is too foggy along the Greenland coast to permit the use of airplanes in the search.

WAS ON COURSE

Washington, Aug. 23.—Lieut. Locatelli, Italian flier who left with the American world flight squadron to accompany them on the hop from Iceland to Greenland, but who now is missing, was last sighted 275 miles northeast of Fredericksdal, Greenland, on the exact course plotted for the flight from Reykjavik to Fredericksdal, Iceland.

BEST AT FREDERICKSDAL

Washington, Aug. 23.—The army air service was officially advised last night that the American fliers had reached Greenland.

The dispatch, which was undated, was signed by Lieutenant Bissell, of the army air service and was filed by way of Louisville, N. S. It said:

"Smith and Nelson (the American aviators) arrived safely at Fredericksdal. Nothing definite from Locatelli, who when last heard from was proceeding over planes by 40 minutes. Details later."

The information was contained in a message from the cruiser Milwaukee, which said that Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator who started from Iceland with the Americans on their 825 mile hop, when last heard of was preceding the Americans by 40 minutes.

Kansas City, Aug. 23.—Constables in the territory just outside Kansas City last night surprised a man digging a hole in a pasture while lying on the ground nearby was a 10-day-old baby boy. When the officers approached he threatened them with a shovel and then fled leaving the infant, his shovel, cap and a motor car in which he had come to the spot. Bloodhounds and posers are searching the region.

The child was unharmed but the officers declare the apparent intention of the man was to bury it alive.

LIGHTNING KILLS PIONEER

Hanksville, N. D., Aug. 23.—Fredrick Neumann, 60, who came to North Dakota with his parents in 1874, was yesterday killed by lightning in a hailstorm on his farm four miles southwest of Hanksville. He was walking about a half dozen paces behind his wagon which his son was driving, when struck. Practically all his clothing was stripped from his body.

His son was dazed but soon recovered.

The dead man's parents homesteaded near Great Bend in 1874. Mr. Neumann was active in the development of Richland county. After farming for many years near Great Bend he moved to a farm near Hanksville. He was an active member of the Immanuel Evangelical church.

His widow and 11 children survive.

Republican Candidate Stops
in Connecticut on Way
To Maine

Westport, Conn., Aug. 22.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice president, returned yesterday to the land of his ancestors in the Connecticut river valley. The return was made possible by a visit Dr. Dawes is making while en route to Maine upon his first campaign trip, at the summer home here of Walter H. Wilson, of Chicago, his friend and business associate. The Republican nominee is a descendant on his mother's side from the original Gutes family, which settled in and about Haddam in the early eighteenth century. He never had visited the first American home of his ancestors, so when he arrived in New Haven today enroute to Maine and Mr. Wilson suggested a visit to Haddam, the general immediately indicated he wanted to take the trip. An automobile ride of nearly 70 miles was necessary. Arriving in the vicinity of Haddam, still only a small town but historic in having been the home at one time of Nathan Hale, Mr. Dawes began a search of cemeteries for the graves of his ancestors. Three neighborhood burying grounds were visited before dark and one containing the dust of the Gutes family was found in the village of Haddam. Mr. Dawes spent some time reading the almost obliterated inscriptions on the headstones, some dating back to 1750.

FR. FLANAGAN'S
BOYS HERE FOR TWO DAYS STAY

Band and Entertainers of Omaha, Nebraska, to Give Performances Here
HOW BOYS ARE TRAINED

Father Flanagan's boys arrived in the city this afternoon on Northern Pacific Train No. 7 to remain for two days. The band and entertainers will appear at the Auditorium at 4 p. m. and 8 p. m. both today and tomorrow. The afternoon performance is especially for children. Father Flanagan's boys are from his school at Omaha, Nebraska, started a few years ago to take care of orphans and boys without proper care from parents. Father Flanagan believes in teaching every boy a trade. "I cannot impress upon you too clearly the necessity of teaching every boy a trade," said Father E. J. Flanagan of Omaha, Neb., recently in addressing a parent-teacher association. "How can I estimate for you the extent that such a trade will play in the moulding of a boy's character." "Nothing gives a man a firmer hold on life, a feeling of sureness, than to know that no matter what happens he will always be self-supporting, an asset to society and not a liability. A trade gives a man this feeling, this knowledge that he can always go back to his trade if necessary. "Even though a man takes a college degree and enters one of the professions it is still an added bulwark in his battle with life to know that he has his trade to fall back on should occasion warrant. This is particularly true today, with plasterers receiving $25 a day while graduates of many of the professions receive $150 or $200 a month. "One of the things we insist on at Overlook Farm where we feed, clothe and educate over two hundred and eighty homeless, abandoned and wayward boys, is that each and every one of them learn at least one trade. "At the present time we have been somewhat handicapped on account of finances, but still have managed to install and equip a broom factory, carpenter shop, shoe shop, bakery and cannery where the boys may take their choice of these trades. In the summer months we, of course, also teach gardening, farming and tree culture. "Later on we hope to be able to offer every boy his choice of twenty or more trades, amongst which will be automobile repairing, printing, plumbing, photography, electricity, telephony and painting. "You can readily understand without further suggestion from me, the feeling of independence these boys will bring in a boy, and the aid they will be in making him an honest, producing citizen instead of an inmate of a reformatory, prison or poorhouse."

WINTER WHEAT
BE INCREASED

August 1 intentions of farmers reporting on their own farms throughout the United States to the U. S. Department of Agriculture show for winter wheat acreage 7.5 per cent increase compared with last year, and for winter rye acreage an increase of 14.1 per cent compared with last year. The actual acreage to be planted in winter grains this fall may vary from present intentions according as farmers throughout the country may readjust their plans between now and the completion of seeding, the purpose of this report being that of informing farmers in the various sections of the country what is contemplated in order that this information may serve as a guide for the individual farmers. WINTER RYE—Reports on winter rye acreage planned for this fall show an increase of 14.1 per cent which would give a total of 4,992,000 acres compared with 4,377,000 acres sown last autumn. The pre-war (1909-1913) average was 2,562,000 acres. WINTER WHEAT—Reports on winter wheat acreage planned for this fall show an increase of 7.5 per cent which would give a total of 42,919,000 acres compared with 39,933,000 acres sown last autumn. The pre-war (1909-1913) average was 33,741,000 acres.

FORMER N. D.
SENATOR DIES

Fargo, Aug. 22.—J. Austin Regan, 53, former North Dakota state senator and many years a resident of Fessenden, now of Minneapolis, died of heart failure at the Donahue hospital at New Rockford yesterday. He had been unwell for some time but the illness had been acute for only a week. Mr. Regan had been in New Rockford and vicinity for about six weeks attending to his interests in that section of the state. Mrs. Regan came to the North Dakota town from Minneapolis several days ago and was with her husband when he died. Arthur, their son, arrived in New Rockford today. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at Fessenden, Mr. Regan's old home.

Reduction in Wage Scale Is Urged at Herrin

Herrin, Ill., Aug. 22. A reduction in wage scale was suggested by operators as "the principal remedy" for the current depression in the southern Illinois coal industry at a round table discussion here yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Herrin Lions club. Officials of the United Mine Workers had refused to participate in the conference holding that debate on wages would be futile since the international president of that organization had announced "there will be no wage reduction," and no recession from the three year contract signed at Jacksonville, Fla., last spring. All speakers agreed that conditions were "deplorable." It was estimated that 35,000 Illinois miners were unemployed, while some 50,000 were working only a few days each week.

BAVARIAN
COMMUNIST

Munich, Aug. 22.—The peasants of Germany are threatening to revolt. It is no fun, they assert, being a farmer in this country where there are so many high taxes of one kind or another, to say nothing of the high cost of living. At a meeting of the Bavarian Christian Farmers' Union the situation confronting the small land owners, as brought about mainly by the attitude of the government, was discussed for two entire days. Dr. Schlittenhauser, the general secretary of the union, and a dirt farmer himself, called attention to the precarious conditions with which peasants have to contend, and said that there was not only in the danger of communism looming in the background, but also a social revolution as well. Taxes were generally unsatisfactory and altogether too high, he said. If the present policy of the Berlin government continues for another seven or eight months the danger will be acute indeed, asserted Dr. Schlittenhauser. Granting credits to the farmers on the one hand and imposing exorbitant taxes on the other, would in the end lead to an explosion in the farmers' revolution, declared the secretary, and most of the union members nodded their approval.

Pebble Flies
In Windshield,
Driver Injured

Minot, N. D., Aug. 22.—Harvey L. Fike, of Chicago, special agent for the Hartford Fire Insurance company, is today thankful that he will not lose the sight of his right eye, as the result of the most peculiar accident which occurred while he was riding to Minot at noon yesterday from Surrey, with E. L. Helling in the latter's sedan. Their car was traveling along at a good rate of speed and as they overtook another car and were about to pass it, a small pebble was hurled from under the rear tire of the car ahead. The speed of the pebble, coupled with the speed at which the Helling car was traveling, furnished sufficient force to practically bore two small "holes" through the heavy windshield. For a moment the inside of the car was a cloud of pulverized glass. A piece struck Mr. Fike across the right eye, cutting the lid and the eye-ball. Medical attention was secured and he was assured that his eye sight would not be impaired. Mr. Helling escaped unhurt.

TWINE TRICK LEADS TO PEN

Swindlers Succeeded For a Short Time

Jamestown, Aug. 22.—A pair of clever thieves were brought down from Carrington by Sheriff Hall of Foster county the other day and arraigned before Judge Coffey where they pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny and were each sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary. There they may have an opportunity to get more acquainted with their specialty which was twine.

The men, Robert Sharp and Fred S. Zagie Jr., had a unique and business-like scheme for use in their illegal operations. They made a practice of selling several sacks of twine to farmers at a comparatively low price and then driving by in their Ford automobile and picking up the twine to sell to the next victim. Evidently they picked their customers carefully from the fields near the main state highway, so that it was a simple matter to drive back and take the twine while the farmer was at the other end of the field.

Thomas McCreary, east of Carrington and Otto Tede of Juanita, were the only known Foster county farmers who were robbed by the twine criminals. Mr. McCreary filed the charge of petty larceny in Carrington and Otto Tede later filed the grand larceny charge. According to Sheriff Allen R. Hall the men stole 300 pounds of twine from Tede and 350 pounds from McCreary.

MARKET NEWS INCREASES IN CATTLE SOLD REDUCE PRICE

Declines Set in on the South
St. Paul Market During The Past Week

So St. Paul, Aug. 23.—(By the A. P.) Generous increases in cattle receipts over a week ago resulted in sharp downturns this week, prices falling from 25 to 50 cents lower than a week ago on stockers and feeders and 25 cents lower on grassy killing stock, says the weekly review of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Top feeders reached $7.25 with considerable number good quality weighty feeders in load lots at $6.50 to $7.00, while common and medium kind went at $4.25 to $5.25, mostly. Dry-fed yearlings held up well in line with outside advices top yearlings making $10.25. Weighty steers failed to pass $9.00 for fairly long-fleeced and stopped around $8.00 for short-fleeced. Grass cows were very slow, $1.25 and down, taking the bulk of supply with heifers moving a little better, around $3.00 to $3.00. Canners are listed at $2.00 mainly. Mild shells as low as $1.50 with cutters $2.75 and under. Bulls unchanged $1.25 to $1.55, with heavy bulls $4.00. Packing sows and feeder pigs were credited with the full advance, closing $8.25 to $8.40 and mostly $8.25 for pigs.

A two-sided market was in evidence in sheep, lambs advancing around 25 cents while sheep prices dropped from 50 to 75 cents. On the closing session, top lambs earned $13.25 while bulky offerings were $1.00 with culls around $8.00 to $8.50. DARROW AGAIN PLEADS MERCY BEFORE COURT his associates had agreed to take such an amount as the Chicago Bar association thought proper.

He declared that the state's attorney was asking for a death sentence in the face of conditions that made it contrary to precedent, asserting that only one murderer had ever been sentenced to death in this country after a plea of guilty.
He took a firm stand at the bar, pointing out that it was the latter, while chief justice of the criminal courts, who had sent that man to the gallows.
Then Mr. Darrow frankly admitted that the defense had pleaded guilty because they "were afraid to place their cause before a jury."
He said he and his associates fully realized the heavy responsibility they had placed upon the judge, and added: "If responsibility is divided by 12 it is easier to sway it. But if these boys hang there can be no division of responsibility. You can never explain a hanging by saying that other courts overpowered you."

Taking up an analysis of the case itself, Mr. Darrow read from a scrap of paper the epithets which had been applied to the crime by Thomas Marshall, and Joseph Savage, assistant state's attorneys. "Cowardly, dastardly, fiendish, cruel, premeditated and cold blooded," he read, and then proceeded to argue against the fitness of each of them.

Hanging More Cowardly
Hanging, he said, would be more cowardly and cold blooded than the crime itself. The killing of Franks "was one of the least dastardly and cruel" he had ever known about, he said, and in justification of this statement declared that the standard to be applied here was the suffering of the victim.

"Bobbie Franks suffered very little," he said. "He was dead within fifteen minutes after entering the automobile. He may not have known what happened."
Mr. Darrow declared "stupid" the theory of the state that the $10,000 ransom money was the motive for the crime. He pointed out Loeb's private checking account of $3,000 and the testimony of the secretary of Leopold, Sr., that young Leopold was free to get money from the secretary for the asking.

"The murder was not for money," he charged. "It was the senseless act of immature and diseased children, wandering around in the dark, whose lives we can not thoroughly understand."
Just before the session ended Mr. Darrow began to discuss the effects of the crime on the families.
"I know how easy it is to talk about mothers when you want to do something cruel, as some men talk about patriotism when they want to get something," he said. "I know that any mother might be the mother of a Bobby Franks, as well as the mother of a Richard Loeb or a Nathan Leopold. The trouble is this, that if she is the mother of a Richard Loeb or a Nathan Leopold, she has to ask herself 'How come my children to be what they are? From what ancestry did they get this strain? How far removed was the poison that destroyed their lives?' Was I the bearer of the seed that brings them to death?"

Pity All Parents
"They are helpless. But when you are pitying the father and the mother of poor Bobby Franks what about the mothers and fathers of these two unfortunate boys and what about the unfortunate boys themselves, and what about all the fathers and all the mothers and all the boys and all the girls who tread a dangerous maze in darkness from the cradle to the grave?"

"And do you think you can cure the hatreds and maladjustments of the world by hanging them? You simply show ignorance and hate when you say it. You may hate and understand, but you can only add fuel to the flames by hating in return."
"For God's sake, if the state in which I live is not kinder, more humane, more considerate, more intelligent than the mad act of these two mad boys, I am sorry I have lived so long."

Mr. Darrow will resume tomorrow.

6 JAILED AND MANY CRIMES HELD SOLVED

Minot Police Believe That They Have Found Gang Guilty of Many Robberies

Minot, Aug. 23.—With six men in the city and county jail in the Minot jail today and loot estimated as being worth $4,000 in the possession of officials, authorities believe that they have cleared up a series of recent robberies in Ward county, including two banks, one postoffice and a number of stores.
The loot was seized at a farm home 10 miles southwest of Minot late yesterday and a major portion of it has been identified while county, city and federal officials today continued their activities in the identification of varied assortment of confiscated goods.
The men held in custody are James Riley, Sam Reekard, Stanley Brown alias S. J. Williams, George Burke, Frank Morrison and Robert Vance. With the exception of Riley, on whose farm the loot was found, all the men were arrested in a room at a local hotel. It is the belief of authorities that the following robberies have been entirely or at least partly cleared up through these arrests: First National bank at Mako, N. D., Hartland State bank at Hartland; Carpio postoffice and Carpio Mercantile company; Douglas Standard Oil and Pure Oil company, and a garage at Douglas; Sawyer Hardware store at Sawyer; Rogers Lumber company at Foxholm.
Among the loot is more than $700 worth of stamps and stamped envelopes, a portion of which has been definitely identified.

'DEFENSE TEST' IS PROCLAIMED BY GOVERNOR

Nestos Urges Observance of the Preparedness Day in North Dakota

Governor R. A. Nestos, following his recent statement declaring his willingness to cooperate in National Defense Day, today issued the following proclamation:
WHEREAS, it is the apparent purpose of the national defense acts to secure a reasonable degree of preparedness at small expense and without maintaining a large national army, and
WHEREAS, it is recognized that this can be secured best when the citizenship of our country have an intelligent appreciation of what is needed to meet national emergencies, and a disposition to provide the facilities that are essential to our national welfare, and
WHEREAS, September twelfth has been set aside as "national defense test day" for the purpose of imparting a proper understanding of and stimulating an intelligent interest in this problem, and while this is a very busy season in North Dakota, it seems desirable to conduct our "national defense test" on the same date,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, R. A. Nestos, Governor of the state of North Dakota, do hereby designate
Friday, September 12, 1924
National Defense Test Day
and especially urge that the national guard and other voluntary organizations for national defense in this state, join in a proper observance of this day in so far as it can be done without interference with harvesting and threshing requirements. In some cases it may be found desirable to conduct the whole program during the evening hours.

In line with the recommendations of Major General C. B. Duncan, I especially urge that the programs of the day include the following:
1. Assembly and parade of military organizations under conditions which would exist in an emergency.
2. Prayer for our national welfare.
3. Patriotic music.
4. Appropriate addresses.
5. Pledges of loyalty to the country and its flag.

Done under my hand and the Great Seal of the state of North Dakota, at the Capitol in Bismarck, this 22nd day of August, A. D. 1924.

R. A. NESTOS, Governor.

Record-Breaking Ralph de Palma, Driving a Chrysler Six, SETS NEW MARK FOR FAMOUS MT. WILSON CLIMB

Using Stock Car, Famous Driver Cuts More Than Two Minutes From Previous Best Time and Wins Los Angeles Express Trophy.

In one of the most spectacular demonstrations of motor car performance ever given in the West a Chrysler six-cylinder stock touring car, driven by Ralph de Palma, the famous motor car driver, shattered the Mount Wilson (California) road record by more than two minutes, covering the nine and a half miles of twisting road in 25 minutes, 48.85 seconds.
By its remarkable performance the Chrysler became possessor of the Los Angeles Evening Express challenge trophy for the stock car making the fastest time up the famous mountain.
The Chrysler mark is almost unbelievable to anyone familiar with the famous mountain road, with its climb of more than 4600 feet. It was particularly remarkable in that the car was not stripped, but carried all fenders, and was minus only the top glass in the windshield and the top. Even the muffler was not removed, nor was a cut-out used, and De Palma's only complaint at the finish was that he had more power at his disposal than the rough condition of the road permitted him to use. MANY MINERS ESCAPE DEATH

Wheeling Reports That 150 of Them Are Safe

Wheeling, West Virginia, Aug. 23.—One hundred and fifty miners, at work in the Lincoln mine of the Lorain Coal and Duck Company at Lansing, Ohio, four miles west of here, escaped unharmed late yesterday when an electric trolley wire in the mine fell, short-circuited in a rail, and set the mine afire.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 23.—Seven state mine inspectors, and two mine rescue trucks were rushed to Blaine, Ohio, today by the state division of mines, upon receipt of word that an explosion had occurred in the Lincoln mine and that a fire was burning furiously in the workings.

The mine, owned by the Lorain Coal and Duck Company of Columbus, employs about 200 men, but first reports did not indicate whether any of the men were caught in the mine. Blaine is near Bridgeport, Ohio, and nearly across the Ohio river from Wheeling, West Virginia.

The Chrysler's record run was checked by four Los Angeles newspaper men, and was timed and bannered in exactly the same fashion as house at the foot by one of the newspaper men, while the other three at the hotel at the summit listened to the starting word over the telephone as the signal to click De Palma away, while the three clocks at the summit were Fred Ross of the Los Angeles Times, and the average of the three was taken as the time. Shirley Olympius of the Los Angeles Examiner sent De Palma away, while the three clocks at the summit were Fred Ross of the Los Angeles Times, had not boiled, and the radiator was as full as when the car was started.

De Palma's mark not only set a new stock car record for the mountain but likewise demolished the broken on April 17, 1922, by Walter Lord, driving a Vello, in 2 minutes, 51.66 seconds, and now it is held by the Chrysler, driven by De Palma, in 25 minutes, 48.85 seconds.

Frederick Wagner of the Los Angeles Express and H. L. Blewett of the Los Angeles Herald.

De Palma made a before-sunrise climb, to avoid the blinding glare of the early sun which would have imposed a greatly added hazard on some of the turns. The Mt. Wilson road, due to the dry winter, is in by no means as good condition as when former runs were made, in the opinion of Manager Cory of the Mt. Wilson hotel. Notwithstanding, De Palma reached the top without other mishap than a slight dent on one rear fender where he scraped the rock of the mountain side on one turn. The heat indicator on the Chrysler dash showed less than 200 degrees at the finish, the water in the radiator stripper car, specially prepared for the climb. The non-stock mark was 26 minutes and 56 seconds, more than a minute slower than the Chrysler's new record.

From the summit of Mt. Wilson the newspaper observers, drove the Chrysler direct to the Culter City track, where he circled the mile track in 39 seconds, and showed a speed of 72 miles an hour in the straightaways, demonstrating conclusively that the gear ratio of the Chrysler was strictly standard.

MARKET NEWS

INCREASES IN CATTLE SOLD REDUCE PRICE

Declines Set in on the South St. Paul Market During The Past Week

So. St. Paul, Aug. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Generous increases in cattle receipts over a week ago resulted in sharp downturns this week, prices ruling from 25 to 50 cents lower than a week ago on stockers and feeders and 25 cents lower on grassy killing stock, says the weekly review of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Top feeders reached $7.25 with considerable number good quality weighty feeders in load lots at $6.50 to $7.00, while common and medium kind went at $4.25 to $6.25, mostly. Dry-fed yearlings held up well in line with outside advices top youngsters making $10.25. Weighty steers failed to pass $9.00 for fairly long horns and stopped around $8.00 for short-horned. Grass cows were very slow, $4.25 and down, taking the bulk of supply with heifers moving a little better, around $4.00 to $6.00. Canners are listed at $2.00 mainly. Old shells as low as $1.50 with cutters $2.75 and under. Bulls unchanged $3.25 to $3.50 with heavy bulls $4.00. Veal calves are having early annual fall rise, being credited with another $1.00 advance or around $11.00 to $11.50 for best calves.

Hog producers had their inning again this week, the market advancing around 25 cents over last week's finish. Top hogs closed $9.75 with 160 to 200-pound desirable offerings selling from this price down to $9.60. Packing sows and feeder pigs were credited with the full advance, closing $8.25 to $8.40 and mostly $8.25 for pigs.

A two-sided market was in evidence in sheep, lambs advancing 25 cents while sheep prices dropped from 50 to 75 cents. On the closing session, top lambs earned $13.25 while bulky offerings were $1.00 with culls around $8.00 to $8.50. Heavy weight ewes failed to earn over $6.00 while heavy ewes were wanted at around $4.00. Cattle receipts today were 3,000; hog receipts 600; sheep receipts 400.

WHEAT PRICES ARE LOWER

Chicago, Aug. 23. (By the A. P.)—Despite liberal export buying wheat prices gave way as a result of sympathy with corn. After opening 3-4 to 1-1-2 cents down, September $1.24 7-8 to $1.25 and December $1.30 to $1.30 1-4, wheat underwent a decided drop.

his associates had agreed to take such an amount as the Chicago Bar association thought proper.

He declared that the state's attorneys were asking for a death sentence in the face of conditions that made it contrary to precedent, asserting that only one murderer had ever been sentenced to death in this county after a plea of guilty. He took a fling at Mr. Crowe by pointing out that it was the latter, while chief justice of the criminal courts, who had sent that man to the gallows.

Then Mr. Darrow frankly admitted that the defense had pleaded guilty because they "were afraid to place their cause before a jury."

He said he and his associates fully realized the heavy responsibility they had placed upon the judge, and added: "If responsibility is divided by 12 it is easier to sway it. But if these boys hang there can be no discussion of responsibility. You can never explain a hanging by saying that courts overpowered you."

Taking up an analysis of the case itself, Mr. Darrow read from a scrap of paper the epithets which had been applied to the crime by Thomas Marshall, and Joseph Savage, assistant state attorneys. "Cowardly, dastardly, fiendish, cruel, premeditated and cold blooded," he read, and then proceeded to argue against the fitness of each of them.

Hanging More Cowardly
Hanging, he said, would be more cowardly and cold blooded than the crime itself. The killing of Franks "was one of the least dastardly and cruel" he had ever known about, he said, and in justification of this statement declared that the standard to be applied here was the sufferings of the victim.

"Bobbie Franks suffered very little," he said. "He was dead within fifteen minutes after entering the automobile. He may not have known what happened."

Mr. Darrow declared "stupid" the theory of the state that the $10,000 ransom money was the motive for the crime. He pointed out Leob's private checking account of $3,000 and the testimony of the secretary of Leopold, Sr., that young Leopold was free to get money from the secretary for the asking.

"The murder was not for money," he charged. "It was the senseless act of immature and diseased children, wandering around in the dark, whose lives we can not thoroughly understand."

Just before the session ended Mr. Darrow began to discuss the effects of the crime on the families. "I know how easy it is to talk about mothers when you want to do something cruel, as some men talk about patriotism when they want to get something," he said. "I know that any mother might be the mother of a Bobby Franks, as well the mother of a Richard Leob or a Nathan Leopold. The trouble is this, that if she is the mother of a Richard Leob or a Nathan Leopold, she has to ask herself 'How came my children to be what they are?' From what ancestry did they get this strain? How far removed was the poison that destroyed their lives? Was I the bearer of the seed that brings them to death?"

Pity All Parents
"They are helpless. But when you are pitying the father and the mother of poor Bobby Franks what about the mothers and fathers of these two unfortunate boys and what about the unfortunate boys themselves, and what about all the fathers and all the mothers and all the boys and all the girls who tread a dangerous maze in darkness from the cradle to the grave?"

"And do you think you can cure the hatreds and maladjustments of the world by hanging them? You simply show ignorance and hate when you say it. You may here and there cure hatred with love and understanding, but you can only add fuel to the flames by hating in return. "For God's sake, if the state in which I live is not kinder, more humane, more considerate, more intelligent than the mad act of these two mad boys, I am sorry I have lived so long."

Mr. Darrow will resume tomorrow.

6 JAILED AND MANY CRIMES HELD SOLVED

Minot Police Believe That They Have Found Gang Guilty of Many Robberies

Minot, Aug. 23.—With six men in the city and county jail in the Minot jail today and loot estimated as being worth $4,000 in the possession of officials, authorities believe that they have cleared up a series of recent robberies in Ward county, including two banks, one postoffice and a number of stores.

The loot was seized at a farm home 10 miles southwest of Minot late yesterday and a major portion of it has been identified while county, city and federal officials today continued their activities in the identification of varied assortment of confiscated goods.
The men held in custody are James Riley, Sam Redwood, Stanley Brown alias S. J. Williams, George Burke, Frank Morrison and Robert Vance. With the exception of Riley on whose farm the loot was found, all the men were arrested in a room at a local hotel. It is the belief of authorities that in following robberies have been entirely or at least partly cleared up through these arrests: First National bank at Mankato, N. D., Hartland State bank at Hartland; Carpio postoffice and Carpio Mercantile company; Douglas Standard Oil and Pure Oil company, and a garage at Douglas; Sawyer Hardware store at Sawyer; Rogers Lumber company at Foxholm.
Among the loot is more than $700 worth of stamps and stamped envelopes, a portion of which has been definitely identified.

'DEFENSE TEST' IS PROCLAIMED BY GOVERNOR

Nestor Urges Observance of the Preparedness Day in North Dakota

Governor R. A. Nestor, following his recent statement declaring his willingness to cooperate in National Defense Day, today issued the following proclamation:
WHEREAS, It is the apparent purpose of the national defense acts to secure a reasonable degree of preparedness at small expense and without maintaining a large national army, and
WHEREAS, It is recognized that this can be secured best when the citizenship of our country have an intelligent appreciation of what is needed to meet national emergencies, and a disposition to provide the facilities that are essential to our national welfare, and
WHEREAS, September twelfth has been set aside as "national defense test day" for the purpose of imparting a proper understanding of and stimulating an interest in this problem, and while this is a very busy season in North Dakota, it seems desirable to conduct our "national defense test" on the same date,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, R. A. Nestor, Governor of the state of North Dakota, do hereby designate Friday, September 12, 1924 National Defense Test Day and especially urge that the national guard and other voluntary organizations for national defense in this state, join in a proper observance of this day in so far as it can be done without interference with harvesting and threshing requirements. In some cases it may be found desirable to conduct the whole program during the evening hours.

In line with the recommendations of Major General G. B. Duncan, I especially urge that the programs of the day include the following:
1. Assembly and parade of military organizations under conditions which would exist in an emergency.
2. Prayer for our national welfare.
3. Patriotic music.
4. Appropriate addresses.
5. Pledges of loyalty to the country and its flag.

Done under my hand and the Great Seal of the state of North Dakota, at the Capitol in Bismarck, this 22nd day of August, A. D. 1924.
R. A. NESTOR, Governor.

Record-Breaking Ralph de Palma, Driving a Chrysler Six, SETS NEW MARK FOR FAMOUS MT. WILSON CLIMB

Using Stock Car, Famous Driver Cuts More Than Two Minutes From Previous Best Time and Wins Los Angeles Express Trophy.

In one of the most spectacular demonstrations of motor car performance ever given in the West a Chrysler six-cylinder stock touring car, driven by Ralph de Palma, the famous motor car driver, shattered the Mount Wilson (California) road record by more than two minutes, covering the nine and a half miles of twisting road in 25 minutes, 48.85 seconds.

By its remarkable performance the Chrysler became possessor of the Los Angeles Evening Express challenge trophy for the stock car making the fastest time up the famous mountain.

The Chrysler mark is almost unbelievable to anyone familiar with the famous mountain road, with its climb of more than 4600 feet. It was particularly remarkable in that the car was not stripped, but carried all fenders, and was minus only the top glass in the windshield and the top. Even the muffler was not removed, nor was a cut-out used, and De Palma's only complaint at the finish was that he had more power at his disposal than the rough condition of the road permitted him to use. With the exception of three short stretches where he dropped to low, he used second gear all the way up the hill, and at one point on

MANY MINERS ESCAPE DEATH

Wheeling Reports That 150 of Them Are Safe

Wheeling, West Virginia, Aug. 23.—One hundred and fifty miners, at work in the Lincoln mine of the Lorain Coal and Dock Company at Lansing, Ohio, four miles west of here, escaped unharmed late yesterday when an electric trolley wire in the mine fell, short-circuited on a rail, and set the mine afire.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 23.—Seven state mine inspectors, and two mine rescue trucks were rushed to Blaine, Ohio, today by the state division of mines, upon receipt of word that an explosion had occurred in the Lincoln mine and that a fire was burning furiously in the workings.

The mine, owned by the Lorain Coal and Dock Company of Columbus, employs about 200 men, but first reports did not indicate whether any of the men were caught in the mine. Blaine is near Bridgeport, Ohio, and nearly across the Ohio river from Wheeling, West Virginia.

TWINE TRICK LEADS TO PEN

Swindlers Succeeded For a Short Time

Jamestown, Aug. 22.—A pair of clever thieves were brought down from Carrington by Sheriff Hall of Foster county the other day and arraigned before Judge Coffey where they pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny and were each sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary. There they may have an opportunity to get more acquainted with their specialty which was twine.

The men, Robert Sharp and Fred S. Zagie Jr., had a unique and business-like scheme for use in their illegal operations. They made a practice of selling several sacks of twine to farmers at a comparative low price and then driving by in their Ford automobile and picking up the twine to sell to the next victim. Evidently they picked their customers carefully from the fields near the main state highway, so that it was a simple matter to drive back and take the twine while the farmer was at the other end of the field.

Thomas McCreary, east of Carrington and Otto Tede of Juana, were the only known Foster county farmers who were robbed by the twin criminals. Mr. McCreary filed the charge of petty larceny in Carrington and Otto Tede later filed the grand larceny charge. According to Sheriff Allen B. Hall the men stole 300 pounds of twine from Tede and 350 pounds from McCreary.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

THE PUBLIC IS CONCERNED

Mr. Clarence Darrow, attorney for Leopold and Loeb, is provoked to vehement outburst. "The public," he says, "thinks it's doing a fine thing when it rouses itself from its customary lethargy and shouts 'Hang them!' But it's damned unfair."

It is the lawyer speaking—the lawyer who can never understand that the adjudication of crime is not a mere matter for bench and bar alone. The public is concerned, must be concerned, or its agencies of justice will have no background, no authoritative potency.

Moreover crime is not a mere attack upon individual rights or person. It is an attack upon society—the public—and it is the part of wisdom and of safety for society to give active heed to all such assaults.

When accused murderers plead guilty to the serious charge against them, admit their sanity, and confess knowledge of the difference between right and wrong, as Leopold and Loeb did, the public naturally and logically believes there isn't much to be done aside from administering the punishment duly prescribed.

That has been the usual procedure in the past, but Mr. Darrow has discovered something new that, he thinks, neutralizes admitted guilt, admitted sanity and admitted knowledge of right and wrong.

That something is the assumed inability of the accused to practice the right that they are admittedly able to distinguish from wrong. That is, while the young fiends are far advanced intellectually, they are as deficient emotionally as a child of four or five years is, and this timely discovery of the hired lawyer, backed by convenient and hired alienists, must operate in saving them from the gallows, the prison or the insane asylum, must relieve them from the grave responsibility of their crime, as if they were babies.

It is a novel presentment in mitigation of a confessed crime committed by college graduates. Mr. Darrow thinks the public is "damned unfair" because it refuses to believe the plea as anything more than piffle whose introduction into the case reduces court procedure to a travesty most disgusting.

The idea that men with nothing more than baby emotions would calmly set about committing "the perfect crime," plan and calculate it for six months, anticipate and attempt to defeat every possibility of discovery, prepare loopholes of escape and alibi, and even join in the hunt for the perpetrators of the crime they themselves had committed—the idea that baby minds could or would do all this is quite beyond even a glib public to accept with equanimity.

It is no wonder the public shows the roilish disposition Mr. Darrow describes as "damned unfair." But neither he nor his clients are to be pleased in this matter. Pleading "the baby act" will not do. The main result and the only safe one to be attained is that demanded by society through its laws—the adequate punishment of the guilty and the vindication of justice.

BAMBOOZLED
How honest is the average person? Chapman and Bower, ticket sellers at the North Station in Boston, have lent $1000 apiece of their personal funds to stranded strangers. Of course, every one of the borrowers was profuse with thanks and fervent in promises to repay.

The net result? Chapman and Bower say they have gotten back only 5 cents on the dollar. But this doesn't prove that the average person is dishonest. The two ticket sellers lent to only a few out of the great traveling public. Public averages honest.

BUTCHERS

Again we are urged to buy the cheaper grades of meat, which require more chewing but are as nourishing as the fancy cuts. The butchers' national association, meeting in Chicago, claimed the trouble is that housewives have forgotten how to cook the cheaper cuts and make them tasty.

Trouble is: If the consuming public started a rush for the cheaper cuts (now virtually a "drug on the market"), the prices would respond to demand and go sky-high. Round steak would cost as much as tenderloin if everyone clamored for round steak. The system gets the consumer, coming or going.

BODY

Not as puzzling as it seems. New York state finds that, out of every 100 of its children, 48 are physically normal in cities and only 27 in rural districts. Others have defects. The city lad, denied the fresh air and big playgrounds and peace of the country, maybe is healthier than his country cousin because he has better medical and physical attention in youth, especially babyhood.

But he also has what's a good deal worse than physical ailments—more nervous maladies than the farm boy. They "get" him later in life.

LAND

Suppose Henry Ford or some other industrial genius markets inexpensive and safe airplanes, enabling people to live far out in the country, flying back and forth to work in town.

Transportation is the chief object to such a system. If the airplane overcomes this obstacle, there'll be a revolution in land values, city properties dropping, country sites increasing. If you're buying land to make your descendants rich, the city may not be the best bet.

ALIBI

The negro's quaint sense of humor, often bursting forth unconsciously, is international.

A colored man in Chatham, Canada, is arrested for cruelty to his horse. The charge is that he failed to keep his nag hitched in the shade. "The shade was there, but it moved," is his alibi.

FARM COSTS ARE DOWN

(St. Paul Dispatch)

The wheat crop of North Dakota was produced this year at a cost of 81 cents a bushel; its rye crop cost 58 cents; its flax crop cost $1.49. This is the lowest production cost since the war and the first time during that period that the farmer had received a price above the cost of production. He certainly made a profit.

The figures are not mere guesses. They are the result of the tabulation of costs from 100 demonstration farms in North Dakota, compiled and issued by Rex E. Willard of the U. S. experiment station and J. F. Thorntons, his assistant. For nearly a decade a close record of costs of production have been kept by these experts using the experiment station farms and privately owned farms all over the state to arrive at the average. The cost figure of $1.49 a bushel for wheat was arrived at in 1923 by the same careful method. Nothing is taken for granted. Every item of cost is included, except possibly the valuable minerals, nitrogen, phosphorus and the like, taken from the soil with the crop.

The hope of the farmer has been that he could get cost plus for his product. But, previous to the work of Professor Willard and his assistant, there was no means of knowing the cost. The farmer raised his wheat, took the market price and guessed at his profit or his loss. It is different today and the figures supplied the farmer as to costs have interested him in knowing how far above or below par his were. To assist him, the experts prepared simple records whereon hundreds of farmers now keep account of every cent that goes into their industry and when the crop is sold in the fall or winter, they know whether they have been running economically or wastefully. Once they know their costs they can set up a price that the buyer knows is fair. That will end in simplifying marketing. It is the primary step forward giving the farmer the same deal as labor and industry now has.

Do You Know—

That we are harvesting one of the biggest small grain crops we have ever had?

That prices are better than they have been in years?

That will enable many of our farmers to get on their feet and will give the rest of them a chance to breathe and at least partly catch up?

That the corn, with thirty days more of root weather, will come through in very good shape?

That at least 75 per cent of it will be safe from frost by September 15th or 20th?

That our corn is still far better than it is in the so-called "corn states"?

That even in Kansas, according to crop experts reporting in Sunday's papers, corn is not yet in the roasting ear stage while some of ours is?

That frost damaged corn in this state east of Jamestown but ours is not touched?

That we always have a cold spell in August and that we are probably over any frost danger for another month yet?

That this crop is only the start? That while we are harvesting the hardest years the state has ever had the coming years will see this state on the firmest foundation it has ever been?

That the increase in corn, hogs, poultry, milking, sweet clover and all other things which go to make up a thorough diversification in farming will give us the best foundation we have ever had on which to build?

That we are in for the greatest growth and on the surest and soundest foundation this state has ever known?

That if you will drive out in the surrounding country and see yourself the big increase in corn acreage and all those other things you will realize that Burleigh County and North Dakota are fast coming into their own?

That your salaries, your living comes from the surrounding country?

That if you want your salary to keep up, your living to keep up, that you must boost for Burleigh County and North Dakota?

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Let's go and see Mr. and Mrs. Zebra," said Weeny Elephant to the Twins. "They were very good friends of mine in the circus."

"What do zebras look like?" asked Nancy.

"Don't you know?" said Weeny, in surprise. "Why, they look exactly like awnings. But I never could make up my mind whether they were white with black stripes or black with white stripes. And they are exactly alike."

"I know what you mean now," said Nancy. "They look like ponies, don't they?"

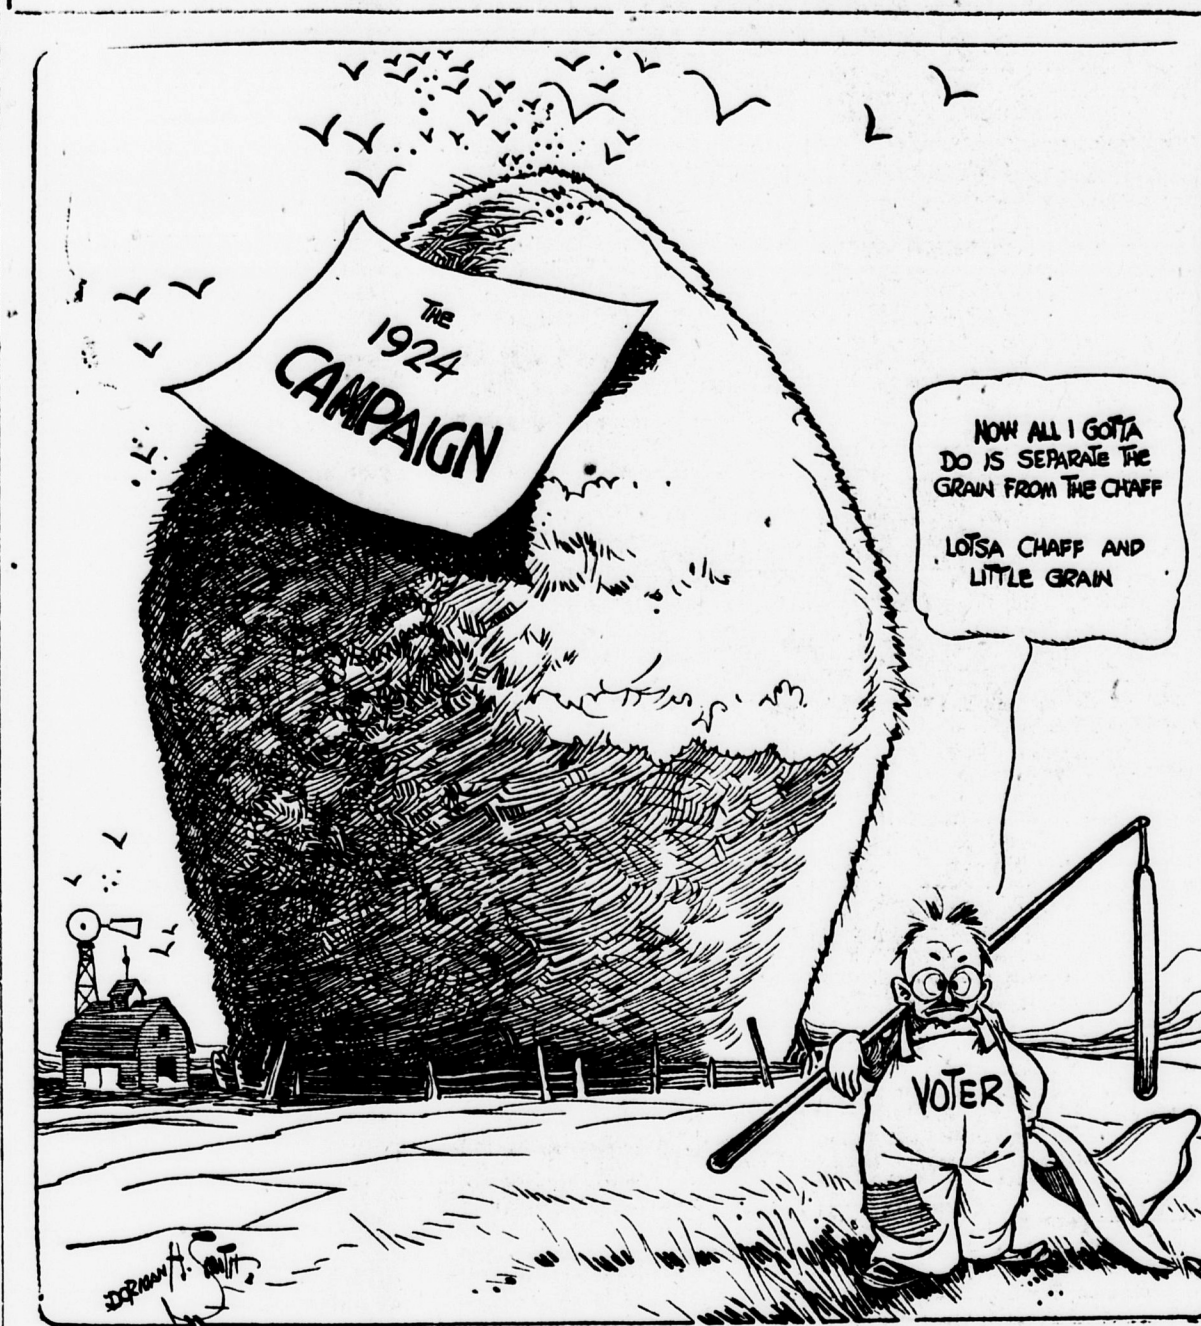

"Yes! Just exactly," said Weeny. "They used to walk along in the circus parade pulling Cinderella in a silver slipper."

"I remember," cried Nick. "Do you suppose they'll let us ride them?"

"Wouldn't be surprised a bit if they did," said Weeny. "Why, here we are, right at the place."

Mr. and Mrs. Zebra were out sunning themselves on a nice grassy spot in front of their house when the travelers arrived. A tiny zebra about knee high to a duck was playing around and kicking up his heels like a spring lamb.

"Hello, Weeny," called Mr. Zebra. "I just kind of thought that was you."

"Well, you didn't have to look twice to see me, did you, Mr. Zebra?" laughed Weeny. "I've stopped growing, though, and ma says she's thankful, because she always had to buy my clothes two sizes too large. I grew into them so fast. Oh, dearie me! I beg your pardon! I forgot that I had passengers on my back. Mr. Zebra, these are Nancy and Nick, the Twins. This is Mr. Zebra. Hello, Mrs. Zebra!"

Mrs. Zebra came over, too, and Weeny shook hands with her trunk and said how well she looked and was that her baby. And Mrs. Zebra looked as proud as a duchess and said that he was, and his name was Tiny.

So they all stayed and had a good time.

One day Mr. and Mrs. Zebra said they would take Nancy and Nick for a ride if Weeny would mind the baby.

"Of course I will," said Weeny. "I just love to mind babies."

So Nick got on Mr. Zebra and Nancy got on Mrs. Zebra's back, and away they went.

Weeny played with Tiny for a while and after a while he got sleepy, for the sun was pretty warm. So he dozed off, Weeny did.

After a while Weeny woke up and couldn't see Tiny anywhere. Not a hair of him was to be found. "My goodness!" he said to himself. "I'm a nice nurse, I am, to let Mrs. Zebra's baby get lost!"

And he hunted and hunted. But no Tiny was to be found.

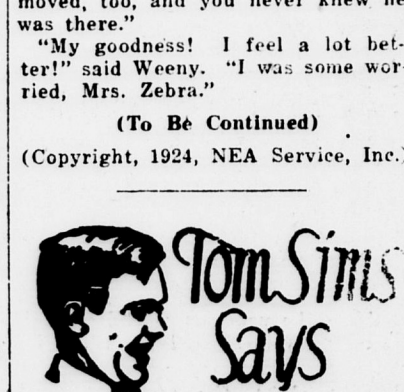

Pretty soon Mr. and Mrs. Zebra came trotting home with the Twins. "We're sorry," said Weeny, "but your baby is lost. I went to sleep and when I woke up he was gone."

"Why, there he is right under you!" laughed Mrs. Zebra. "He was hunting a shady spot, and you make a good bit of shade, Weeny Elephant. When you moved, I suppose, he moved, too, and you never knew he was there."

"My goodness! I feel a lot better!" said Weeny. "I was some worried, Mrs. Zebra."

HOW ANDY MADE HIS MONEY

By Albert Apple

Forty years ago a young fellow named Anderson, without a penny to his name, drifted into a hopeless looking village in central Ontario, Canada.

He was among strangers. His pocketbook was empty. And he didn't have much in the way of education. The village he started to work in was one of those backwoods communities which seem totally lacking in opportunity.

Anderson's first job in this place was feeding cattle at the railroad stockyards—cattle driven in by farmers and awaiting shipment.

Today the village still is a village—about 800 people. Anderson's hair is whitening. He shows the marks of hard work. But he is rich enough to spend his winters in Florida. He owns a general store. He owns timber land, also houses that bring him a steady income of $250 a month.

He's worth about a quarter of a million.

That's not a tremendous fortune, compared with some of the men who are known all over the continent.

But Andy has all the money he needs. He's happy. His life has been useful, helping his community. He has raised to manhood three fine boys, and they are taking his place as he rests on his oars. All around, he's a real success.

Now, when Andy arrived in this village, he met a lot of other young fellows. Some got out. Some stayed. They had the notion that there wasn't any opportunity locally. And they were right, as far as they themselves were concerned. Most of them are where they started. They haven't gotten anywhere. Andy is the only man in town who has made money.

And he made it in a community, buried in the woods and rocks, where summers are short and winters 50 below zero—in short, a community that would look hopeless to nearly every man ambitious to get ahead.

The answer is that opportunity is not found, it is made. It isn't the town or the job that counts, it's the man.

Such applications have been made so far have been made to the county agent, who has the necessary blanks. They are then passed upon by a local committee of three men, one of whom is appointed by the local group of borrowers, or for them by the county agent, the second selected from the business men of the locality, and the third chosen by these two. DIRECTOR OF PAGEANT NOW IS AT WORK

Miss Nellie Louise Jewel of Thurston Management Is At The Helm

Miss Nellie Louise Jewel, pageant director for the Thurston Management of Chicago is in Mandan rehearsing the historic episodes and dances of the pageant to be staged for the Missouri Slope Fair, Sept. 1, 2, and 3.

Miss Jewel is a director of much experience, having directed for the Thurston Management for the past several years productions staged in Chicago, Marquette, Ill., Antigo and Wisconsin, Wis., Ludington, Mich.; Spencer, Ia.; Rochester, Minn.; Arkansas City, Kansas, and many other cities with tremendous success.

Many of these towns have already arranged with the Thurstons for another pageant, resulting from the great success and beauty of the production staged. Miss Jewel is very enthusiastic over the unusual history to be shown in the Mandan pageant. The Indian scenes as written by Major A. B. Welch, have peculiar characteristics of a deeply interesting nature which could only be known to a profound student of Indian lore and of history in general, and which will insure some episodes differing entirely from those shown in the pageant staged here two years ago. Some of the scenes staged here before are to be repeated by popular request.

Bismarck has chosen several Queen candidates to participate in the contest for the honor of becoming Queen on Bismarck night, Tuesday night, Sept. 2 at the Mandan fair.

SOCIETIES BLAMED FOR DISORDERS

Manila, Aug. 23.—Approximately 200 secret and fraternal societies are now in existence in the Philippines, according to an official report by the intelligence office of the Philippine Constabulary, which asserts that most of the labor troubles in Manila as well as in the provinces are due to the activities of these societies. The report also declares that the agrarian troubles, which flare up at intervals are attributable to these societies.

In Manila alone there are 134 secret societies and the majority of these have been organized during the last three years, according to the constabulary report.

In Occidental Negros, a rich sugar cane district, numerous cases of lawlessness have been reported and officials declare that rivalry between two of the most powerful of the secret societies has been at the bottom of the trouble.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

THE PUBLIC IS CONCERNED

Mr. Clarence Darrow, attorney for Leopold and Loeb, is provoked to vehement outburst. "The public," he says, "thinks it's doing a fine thing when it rouses itself from its customary lethargy and shouts 'Hang them!' But it's damned unfair."

It is the lawyer speaking—the lawyer who can never understand that the adjudication of crime is not a mere matter for bench and bar alone. The public is concerned, must be concerned, or its agencies of justice will have no background, no authoritative potency.

Moreover crime is not a mere attack upon individual rights or person. It is an attack upon society—the public—and it is the part of wisdom and of safety for society to give active heed to all such assaults.

When accused murderers plead guilty to the serious charge against them, admit their sanity, and confess knowledge of the difference between right and wrong, as Leopold and Loeb did, the public naturally and logically believes there isn't much to be done aside from administering the punishment duly prescribed.

That has been the usual procedure in the past, but Mr. Darrow has discovered something new that, he thinks, neutralizes admitted guilt, admitted sanity and admitted knowledge of right and wrong.

That something is the assumed inability of the accused to practice the right that they are admittedly able to distinguish from wrong. That is, while the young fiends are far advanced intellectually, they are as deficient emotionally as a child of four or five years is. And this timely discovery of the hired lawyer, backed by convenient and hired alienists, must operate in saving them from the gallows, the prison or the insane asylum, must relieve them from the grave responsibility of their crime, as if they were babies.

It is a novel presentment in mitigation of a confessed crime committed by college graduates. Mr. Darrow thinks the public is "damned unfair" because it refuses to believe the plea as anything more than piffle whose introduction into the case reduces court procedure to a travesty most disgusting.

The idea that men with nothing more than baby emotions would calmly set about committing "the perfect crime," plan and calculate it for six months, anticipate and attempt to defeat every possibility of discovery, prepare loopholes of escape and alibi, and even join in the hunt for the perpetrators of the crime they themselves had committed—the idea that baby minds could or would do all this is quite beyond even a glib public to accept with equanimity.

It is no wonder the public shows the roilly disposition Mr. Darrow describes as "damned unfair." But neither he nor his clients are to be pleased in this matter. Pleading "the baby act" will not do. The main result and the only safe one to be attained is that demanded by society through its laws—the adequate punishment of the guilty and the vindication of justice.

BAMBOOZLED

How honest is the average person? Chapman and Bower, ticket sellers at the North Station in Boston, have lent $1000 apiece of their personal funds to stranded strangers. Of course, every one of the borrowers was profuse with thanks and fervent in promises to repay.

The net result? Chapman and Bower say they have gotten back only 5 cents on the dollar. But this doesn't prove that the average person is dishonest. The two ticket sellers lent to only a few out of the great traveling public. Public averages honest.

BUTCHERS

Again we are urged to buy the cheaper grades of meat, which require more chewing but are as nourishing as the fancy cuts. The butchers' national association, meeting in Chicago, claimed the trouble is that housewives have forgotten how to cook the cheaper cuts and make them tasty.

Trouble is: If the consuming public started a rush for the cheaper cuts (now virtually a "drug on the market"), the prices would respond to demand and go sky-high. Round steak would cost as much as tenderloin if everyone clamored for round steak. The system gets the consumer, coming or going.

BODY

Not as puzzling as it seems. New York state finds that out of every 100 of its children, 48 are physically normal in cities and only 27 in rural districts. Others have defects. The city lad, denied the fresh air and big playgrounds and peace of the country, maybe is healthier than his country cousin because he has better medical and physical attention in youth, especially babyhood.

But he also has what's a good deal worse than physical ailments—more nervous maladies than the farm boy. They "get" him later in life.

LAND

Suppose Henry Ford or some other industrial genius markets inexpensive and safe airplanes, enabling people to fly far out in the country, flying back and forth to work in town.

Transportation is the chief object to such a system. If the airplane overcomes this obstacle, there'll be a revolution in land values, city properties dropping, country sites increasing. If you're buying land to make your descendants rich, the city may not be the best bet.

ALIBI

The negro's quaint sense of humor, often bursting forth unconsciously, is international.

A colored man in Chatham, Canada, is arrested for cruelty to his horse. The charge is that he failed to keep the horse hitched in the shade. "The shade was there, but it moved," is his alibi.

FARM COSTS ARE DOWN

(St. Paul Dispatch)

The wheat crop of North Dakota was produced this year at a cost of 81 cents a bushel; its rye crop cost 58 cents; its flax crop cost $1.49. This is the lowest production cost since the war and the first time during that period that the farmer had received a price above the cost of production. He certainly made a profit.

The figures are not mere guesses. They are the result of the tabulation of costs from 100 demonstration farms in North Dakota, compiled and issued by Rex E. Willard of the U. S. experiment station and J. F. Thornderson, his assistant. For nearly a decade a close record of costs of production have been kept by these experts using the experiment station farms and privately owned farms all over the state to arrive at the average. The cost figure of $1.49 a bushel for wheat was arrived at in 1923 by the same careful method. Nothing is taken for granted. Every item of cost is included, except possibly the valuable minerals, nitrogen, phosphorus and the like taken from the soil with the crop.

The hope of the farmer has been that he could get cost plus for his product. But, previous to the work of Professor Willard and his assistant, there was no means of knowing the cost. The farmer raised his wheat, took the market price and guessed at his profit or his loss. It is different today and the figures supplied the farmer as to costs have interested him in knowing how far above or below his were. To assist him, the experts prepared simple records whereon hundreds of farmers now keep a record of every cent that goes into their industry and when the crop is sold in the fall or winter, they know whether they have been running economically or wastefully. Once they know their costs they can set up a price that the buyer knows is fair. That will end in simplifying marketing, the primary step forward giving the farmer the same deal as labor and industry now has.

Do You Know—

That we are harvesting one of the biggest small grain crops we have ever had?

That prices are better than they have been in years?

That we will enable many of our farmers to get on their feet and will give the rest of them a chance to breathe and at least partly catch up?

That the corn, with thirty days more of good weather will come through in very good shape?

That at least 75 per cent of it will be safe from frost by September 15th or 20th?

That our corn is still far better than it is in the so-called "corn states"?

That even in Kansas, according to crop experts reporting in Sunday papers, corn is not yet in the roasting ear stage while some of ours is?

That frost damaged corn in this state is of Jamestown but ours is not touched?

That we always have a cold spell in August and that we are probably over any frost danger for another month yet?

That this crop is only the start?

That while we have passed through the hardest years the state has ever had the coming years will see this state on the firmest foundation it has ever been?

That the increase in corn, hogs, poultry, milking, sweet clover and all other things which go to make up a thorough diversification in farming will give us the best foundation we have ever had on which to build?

That we are in for the greatest growth and on the surest and soundest foundation this state has ever known?

That if you will drive out in the surrounding country and see yourself the big increase in corn acreage and all those other things you will realize that Burleigh County and North Dakota are fast coming into their own?

That your salaries, your living comes from the surrounding country?

That if you want your salary to keep up, your living to keep up, that you must boost for Burleigh County and North Dakota.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Let's go and see Mr. and Mrs. Zebra," said Weeny Elephant to the Twins. "They were very good friends of mine in the circus."

"What do zebras look like?" asked Nancy.

"Don't you know?" said Weeny, in surprise. "Why, they look exactly like us. But I never could make up my mind whether they were white with black stripes or black with white stripes. And they are all exactly alike."

"I know what you mean now," said Nancy. "They look like ponies, don't they?"

"Yes! Just exactly," said Weeny. "They used to walk along the circus parade pulling Cinderella in a silver slipper."

"I remember," cried Nick. "Do you suppose they'll let us ride them?"

"Wouldn't be surprised a bit if they did," said Weeny. "Why, here we are now, right at the place."

Mr. and Mrs. Zebra were out running themselves on a nice grassy spot in front of their house when the travelers arrived. A tiny zebra about knee high to a dock was playing around and kicking up his heels like a spring lamb.

"Hello, Weeny," called Mr. Zebra. "I just kind of thought that was you."

"Well, you didn't have to look twice to see me, did you, Mr. Zebra?" laughed Weeny. "I've stopped growing, though, and my nose is thankful, because she always had to buy my clothes two sizes too large. I grew into them so fast. Oh, dearie me! I beg your pardon! I forgot that I had passengers on my back Mr. Zebra, these are Nancy and Nick, the Twins. This is Mr. Zebra. Hello, Mr. Zebra!"

Mrs. Zebra came over, too, and Weeny shook hands with her trunk and said how well she looked and was that her baby. And Mrs. Zebra looked as proud as a duchess and said that he was, and his name was Tiny.

So they all stayed and had a good time.

One day Mr. and Mrs. Zebra said they would take Nancy and Nick for a ride if Weeny would mind the baby.

"Of course I will," said Weeny. "I just love to mind babies."

So Nick got on Mr. Zebra's back, and Nancy got on Mrs. Zebra's back, and away they went.

Weeny played with Tiny for a while and after a while he got sleepy, for the sun was pretty warm. So he dozed off, Weeny did.

After a while Weeny woke up and couldn't see Tiny anywhere. Not a hair of him was to be found.

"My goodness!" he said to himself. "I'm a nice nurse, I am, to let Mr. Zebra's baby get lost!"

And he hunted and hunted. But no Tiny was to be found.

Pretty soon Mr. and Mrs. Zebra came trotting home with the Twins.

"I'm sorry," said Weeny, "but your baby is lost. I went to sleep and when I woke up he was gone."

"Why, there he is right under you!" laughed Mrs. Zebra. "He was hunting a shady spot, and you make a good bit of shade, Weeny Elephant. When you moved, I suppose he moved, too, and you never knew he was there."

"My goodness! I feel a lot better," said Weeny. "I was some worried, Mrs. Zebra."

HOW ANDY MADE HIS MONEY

By Albert Apple

Forty years ago a young fellow named Anderson, without a penny to his name, drifted into a hopeless looking village in central Ontario, Canada.

He was among strangers. His pocketbook was empty. And he didn't have much in the way of education. The village he started to work in was one of those backwoods communities which seem totally lacking in opportunity.

Anderson's first job in this place was feeding cattle at the railroad stockyards—cattle driven in by farmers and awaiting shipment.

Today the village still is a village—about 800 people. Anderson's hair is whitening. He shows the marks of hard work. But he is rich enough to spend his winters in Florida. He owns a general store. He owns timber land, also houses that bring him a steady income of $250 a month.

He's worth about a quarter of a million.

That's not a tremendous fortune, compared with some of the men who are known all over the continent.

But Andy has all the money he needs. He's happy. His life has been useful, helping his community. He has raised to manhood three fine boys, and they are taking his place as he rests on his oars. All around, he's a real success.

Now, when Andy arrived in this village, he met a lot of other young fellows. Some got out. Some stayed. They had the notion that there wasn't any opportunity locally. And they were right, as far as they themselves were concerned. Most of them are where they started. They haven't gotten anywhere. Andy is the only man in town who has made money.

And he made it in a community, buried in the woods and rocks, where summers are short and winters 50 below zero—in short, a community that would look hopeless to nearly every man ambitious to get ahead.

The answer is that opportunity is not found, it is made. It isn't the town or the job that counts, it's the man.

Natural ability and luck may enter into the matter to considerable extent. But that doesn't alter the fact that opportunity is everywhere—for the right man.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO RUTH BURKE, CONTINUED

I cannot tell you, dear Ruth, how terribly upset I was when mother read me that telegram. Up to that time, although I was not conscious of it, I must have had hope that Jack would come.

Isn't it queer, dear, that men think women may forgive them everything, while they will not forgive anything?

I threw myself face down upon the bed, and for the first time since I had arrived home I let myself go. It seemed to me that my life was entirely ruined—and my own sister had done this.

So absorbed was I in my misery and grief that I did not hear my mother come in until she put her hand upon my shoulder.

"Leslie," she said, "I am writing to John this afternoon. I am going to tell him that Alice wrote that letter. I am going to tell him what I know about the pearls. Then, my child, if he does not come and ask your pardon, he is not worthy of you, and I counsel you to forget him forever."

I had never seen mother look as stern as she did at that moment.

"I wish," she said, "that this had not come at just this time. I am afraid if your father gets the slightest inkling of it it will retard his convalescence."

Now about yourself, dear girl. I wish indeed that I could be with you and see your happiness. Just at present I would not wish my greatest enemy, however, to marry any man. But I expect I shall feel differently some time in the future, for I have a feeling that you are going to be very happy.

With all my love and good wishes, for I have a feeling that you are going to be very happy.

WASHINGTON U. INTERESTED IN ORIENT

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—The University of Washington has adopted a program of interpreting the life, institutions, culture and history of India, China and Japan.

There is a department of Oriental language and literature, with Dr. Herbert H. Cowen, a leading Oriental scholar, at the head. Dr. Cowen recently spent a year in China and Japan, bringing his knowledge of traditions up to date. Several authorities on Chinese, Japanese and Indian literature and art are members of the faculty. A growing interest in the Oriental department is reported.

Of course, my dear, you know that I could not accept the little shop from Walter. One-third of it is yours, and if, as Walter says, I helped you to find that you were able to cope with the world and make your own living, you certainly have helped me to place an anchor to the windward. If Jack shall hold to his unreason, I shall go back and try to run the little shop myself.

There have been two or three reporters here today. Neither my mother nor myself would be interviewed. While we like to read about other people's personal affairs, I find it is always exceedingly annoying to have one's own private joys and sorrows given to a curious and caviling world.

I may see you earlier than you expect, if you are returning directly to Albany for a few days. If Jack still persists in not coming or sending to John this afternoon, I am going to tell him that Alice wrote that letter. I am going to tell him what I know about the pearls. Then, my child, if he does not come and ask your pardon, he is not worthy of you, and I counsel you to forget him forever."

CUYLER'S RISE IN NATIONALS REMARKABLE

From Lowly Bench Warmer
He Steps Up Among the Leading League Batsmen

HORNSBY STILL LEADS

Chicago, Aug. 23.—From a lowly bench warmer, awaiting a chance to step into the game as a substitute, to one of the brightest stars in the National League, is the remarkable rise of Hazen Cuyler, youthful outfield star with the Pirates.

Cuyler today finds himself battling the famed Rogers Hornsby, second base star of the Cardinals, for the batting championship of the league. He bagged eleven hits in his last five games, giving him an average of .383 and is trailing twenty-seven points behind Hornsby, who is topping the list with .410. Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, suffered a slight slump, dropping into third place with .366. The averages include games of Wednesday.

The rise of Cuyler, a rookie from the Southern League, reads like a page from baseball fiction. His chance came by accident when Max Carey, the Pittsburgh veteran, was injured. When Carey returned to the game, Manager McKechnie of the Pirates found Cuyler's services indispensable. His batting, fielding and sparkling base running was an inspiration to the Pirates, who carried the fight to the Giants for the lead in the pennant race.

Cuyler, under the coaching of Carey, developed into one of the greatest base stealers in the league. Carey is leading with 30, with Cuyler and Heathcote of Chicago tied for second place honors with 23 each. Jack Fournier of the Dodgers, leading home run hitter of the league, is basking in the total of 24, while Frisch of the Giants, is setting the pace in scoring, having crossed the plate 90 times, six within the last week.

Other leading batters: Fournier, Brooklyn .344; Young, New York .344; Bressler, Cincinnati .344; Roush, Cincinnati .343; Blades, St. Louis .325; Bottomley, St. Louis .323; High, Brooklyn .321; Kelly, New York .318; Grigsby, Chicago .318.

Vets Near Top
Veterans of the American League are gradually crowding their way toward the top. Following the example of Eddie Collins of the White Sox, Ty Cobb, pilot of the Tigers;

Tris Speaker, leader of the Indians and Harry Heilmann, Detroit slugger have worked themselves up among the leading ten.

Babe Ruth who continues to top the regulars dropped from his .400 mark of a week ago, to .396. However, he still has a comfortable lead over Bibb Falk of the White Sox, who is in second place with .360. George Sisler, fell out of the .300 class and is way down in the list with an average of .298.

Ruth failed to increase his record of thirty-eight homers, but managed to get an average of one hit a game in his last four contests, giving him 158 hits for a total of 314 bases. Besides his homers his hits include 28 doubles and seven triples. By scoring twice he ran his run getting record to 116.

Cobb had made the greatest number of hits in the league, turning in 163 blows.

Eddie Collins, failed to add to his string of 33 stolen bases, but still holds a safe lead over his rivals. Other leading batters: Jameson, Cleveland .348; Cobb, Detroit .345; E. Collins, Chicago .341; Sheely, Chicago .342; Boone, Boston .342; Speaker, Cleveland .340; Heilmann, Detroit .334; Jacobson, St. Louis .332; Goslin, Washington .330; Archdeacon, Chicago .330.

Le Roy Fight Called Off

Fargo, Aug. 23.—Sioux City's fight card scheduled last night had to be postponed until next Friday because Ace Hudkins of Omaha, suffered a bad cut over his eye Wednesday night in a bout in his home town. This was the information received here yesterday in a telegram from Jack Hurley of Fargo, LeRoy's manager. Hurley stated that he would be home Sunday night but that Ruskie would stay in Sioux City all week training for the Hudkins fight.

Billy Evans Says

The baseball scout plays a big part in the success of every major league ball club.

Although always in the background, his judgment and selection of likely material either makes or breaks a ball club.

The scouts are a unit in the opinion that this season has been one of the most unusual in the history of the game, as far as they are concerned.

Players touted to star have done only fairly well. While others merely regarded as possibilities have gone over big.

This spring, when the pitching of the New York Americans began to falter, a hurry-up call was sent to the scouts for pitching material, capable of stepping right in and helping out.

Naturally the scouts went to the bigger minors for such a brand of pitching. Cliff Markle was purchased from St. Paul of the American Association, just a trifle removed from big league class.

Last season, in that league, he had been a big winner. When the Yankees purchased him this year he had nine straight wins to his credit.

After the Yanks had bought him, I met a half dozen scouts, and all agreed that he was the best looking pitcher in the league for immediate delivery.

Markle knows how to pitch, has had some big league experience, and with a hard-hitting club like the Yankees will win lots of ball games.

Markle's career was decidedly disappointing. He simply couldn't finish a game. Opposing teams picked on his fast ball and passed up the curve. Finally in disgust he quit the club and returned to his home.

The failure of Markle caused the club to issue another hurry-up call to the scouts. Pitching strength was needed at once.

A number of scouts had told me that Al Mamaux, former big leaguer, was the most effective pitcher in the International League. Naturally I wasn't surprised when the announcement was made that New York had bought him.

While Mamaux has done some helpful relief pitching for the Yanks, he hasn't been able to turn in many victories.

All of which merely shows what a tough proposition the scouts are up against in trying to add immediate strength to a club.

New York buys the two best-looking pitchers in two of the fastest minor leagues and doesn't benefit very much.

On the other hand Gaston, with no professional experience, picked up from a semi-pro team, has helped keep the Yanks in the race.

Wingard, an unknown collegian, has gone over big for the St. Louis Browns. Whitehill and Wells, two rookies, have pitched fine ball for Detroit.

It's no soft job to pick likely big leaguers.

FARMERS FAIL TO ESTEEM TEACHERS

New York, Aug. 23.—The rural school is the chief defect in the educational system of this country, according to educators from many states who have been participating in a series of lectures and conferences at the summer session of Columbia University. Lack of properly trained teachers, relatively large illiteracy in the population, child labor, and limited high school opportunity were stressed as handicaps of country life.

Of the 300,000 rural and village teachers in the United States, only 150,000 have completed a high school course, it was brought out by Prof. Mabel Carney of Teachers College. Only 10 percent have finished the eighth grade, and 20 percent the sixth grade.

"The number of one-room rural school buildings in the United States is 189,227," Prof. Carney declared. "The number of children in one-teacher rural schools is 4,000,000, or about 20 percent of the nation's total school enrollment."

Dr. Ernest Burnham of the Kalamazoo, Mich., Normal School said that there was a lack of appreciation of teachers by farmers. The average annual salary of rural teachers was only $729.

INVESTIGATE THE CAUSES OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Geneva, Aug. 23.—The unemployment suffered throughout the world from 1920 to 1923 is closely connected with the periodical crises which have afflicted the working classes and humanity as a whole for a century, according to a report issued by the international labor office, which gives the results of an international inquiry into the subject.

The report remarks that this conclusion is contrary to a fairly widespread idea. It declares that while it is true that the great questions of international relations resulting from the war and the treaties of peace have gravely affected the national economy of many countries, resulting in the complication and aggravation of unemployment, the inquiry indicates that apart from certain exceptions, available statistics show scarcely any correlation between changes in unemployment and the fluctuations in foreign trade.

The report adds that in many countries the period of most intense unemployment was accompanied by a greater volume of exports than at some other date.

Artist Will Travel By Wagon

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—Sight-seeing in a covered wagon with "Chicago in two years" as the first goal, is the plan of Louis Dana Johnson, a local artist, who has left here with his family on a journey of five or six years.

Betty Lou, aged 2, plays under the shelter of the canvas. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Barbara, aged 11, hike along the highways. Mr. Johnson expects to "knock off a year" in Chicago to study art. He then will continue to "hit the trail" until he and his family tire of the novelty. The schooner, which he constructed, is fitted with everything necessary for a home and a school.

NEW SEARCH FOR GOLD UNDER WAY IN MONTANA

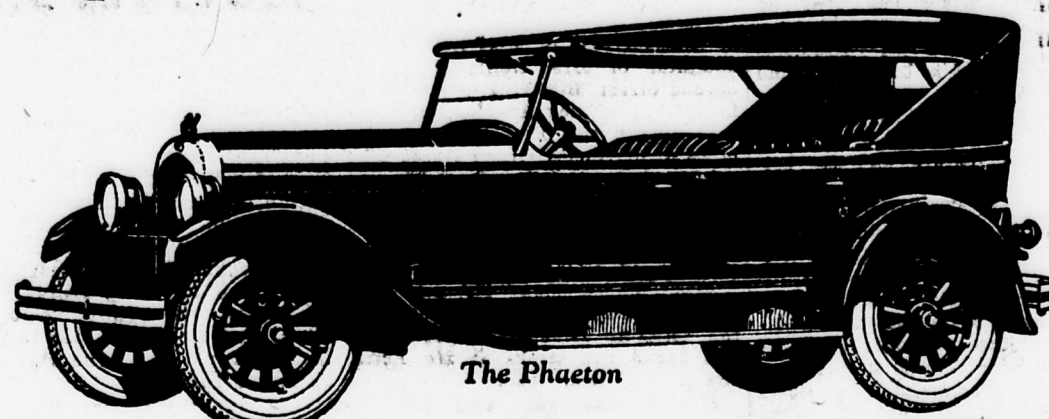

Helena, Mont., Aug. 23.—Quartz prospectors are roaming the Montana hills, gulches and abandoned mining camps this summer in such numbers as to arouse speculation among the early settlers as to whether the cry of "gold" again may lure hundreds into the areas where few men have ventured since the early sixties.

Free milling ore veins have long since been exploited, and in most cases abandoned by the individual prospector, to be taken over by the larger companies or operated on a small scale by miners. Gold laden sands in the creek beds where old placer camps were located have been panned and repanned, yielding millions in the early sixties until bed rock strata turned the fortune seekers to other fields. Forced to discontinue the placer mining on a large scale, the pioneer prospectors are now enlisting younger blood in the search for quartz, hoping to discover veins of sufficient size to warrant construction of stamp mills and reduction works.

Reports from the early-day camps indicate renewed activity at Virginia City and Alder Gulch, one of the richest of early-day sites, while from Confederate Gulch, 30 miles east of here, come stories of occasional nuggets in sluice boxes.

A Score of Features to Explain These Results

Among Chrysler Six features which contribute to its long life and operating economy, is the centrifugal air cleaner which purges the air taken in by the carburetor. This cleaner effectually protects the cylinders and pistons from the entrance of fine, gritty dust. Of equal importance is the Chrysler oil filter, which thoroughly cleans all the oil in the crankcase every 25 miles, and contributes much to smoothness, freedom from carbon, and longer life of rotating and moving parts.

CORWIN MOTOR CO

Every one who has familiarized himself with the new Chrysler Six and its extraordinary performance is convinced that this car turns the leaf of the automobile calendar many years forward.

The engine design embodies a new type of combustion chamber that burns all the gas. Also a new way of distributing the gas equally to all cylinders. A score of other features must be taken into account to explain why an engine only 3-inch bore by 4¼-inch stroke delivers 68 horsepower, top speed well over 70 miles an hour, and a pick-up that is electrifying.

All these things you'll understand better when you ride in the car. You'll find, also, an amazing amount of room, and an ease of handling and parking that is a constant delight.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

John Ainsley, Master Thief by Arthur Somers Roche Copyright 1924, NEA Service Inc.

THE LAST EPISODE
BEGIN HERE TODAY

John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, becomes a master crook—preying upon other thieves. Sweig Thomassen, a brutal murderer, is killed in Ainsley's apartment by the White Eagle, a notorious international crook. While the police search for Ainsley—or rather for "Robert Stickney"—he is preparing to sail for Australia.

In the Trevor dining room Ainsley overhears a distraught young man tell his pretty girl companion that he intends to kill himself. Ainsley finds out that the young man is a thief and that his thievery will be discovered next morning. Acting on a generous impulse, Ainsley offers the young man twenty $500 bills as a gift.

"I said that I was a thief, I am," he said. "Tomorrow morning my employer will find ten thousand dollars missing from his cash-box."

"I tapped the notes in my hand," "It will be years, if ever, before I can repay this loan."

"I never lend; I give," I told him. He looked at me. I am no sentimentalist, but I tell you that I saw a soul cross from hell into heaven. But still he hesitated.

"You must know exactly the sort of person to whom you are making the gift," he said. I liked him because he made no pretense; he did not cringingly swear that it was a sacred obligation.

"Go on," I encouraged him. "My name is Frank Tirrell. I'm a sort of confidential clerk for Phoenix Garbon. He is a trader and speculator. The bulk of his operations have to do with jute, hemp and kapok. But he also takes flings in anything that comes along."

"I am his only employee. His office consists of one room on the ground floor of a dilapidated old building on West Broadway. He has no regular office hours. I know nearly as much of his affairs as he does. Also I have a key to his safe. In that safe he frequently keeps as much as fifty thousand dollars in cash. This is in order that he may not lose any bargain because of delay in getting his hands on the actual money needed to close a deal."

"He is a great gambler. He frequently tells me of the big poker games in which he plays. He also bets heavily on the races. He is about thirty-five. He is thin and shabby. He is a bachelor and also the meanest man that ever lived."

"I was working, three years ago, for a ship-brokerage firm. Mr. Garbon did some business with us. Apparently he liked me, and asked me to work for him. He promised me that he would take me into partnership. Whenever I remind him of his promise, he evades the issue. Times are not too good. I have not been able to leave him."

"Several times I have been with him when he placed wagers on the races with a couple of handbooks named Harris and Poggani. Yesterday an acquaintance of mine gave me a tip on the races. He has given me many tips before, but I never played them. Always his tips have been correct. Today I asked Mr. Garbon when he was going to make good his promises to me. I have been engaged for two years to Rose Peters."

The girl touched his hand again, and I knew that she was his fiancée. "Mr. Garbon laughed at me. He told me that if I didn't like my job I could quit. He left the office about ten, saying that he would not be back until morning. Suddenly went home. Great demand, big wages. Few weeks complete. Call for special offer free. Barber College, Fargo, N. CUYLER'S RISE IN NATIONALS REMARKABLE

From Lowly Bench Warmer He Steps Up Among the Leading League Batsmen

HORNSBY STILL LEADS

Chicago, Aug. 23.—From a lowly bench warmer, awaiting a chance to step into the game as a substitute, to one of the brightest stars in the National League, is the remarkable rise of Huxley Cuyler, youthful outfielder with the Pirates.

Cuyler today finds himself battling the famous Rogers Hornsby, second base star of the Cardinals, for the batting championship of the league. He batted eleven hits in his last five games, giving him an average of .383 and is trailing twenty-seven points behind Hornsby, who is topping the list with .410. Zack Wheat, the Brooklyn veteran, suffered a slight slump, dropping into third place with .366. The averages include games of Wednesday.

The rise of Cuyler, a rookie from the Southern League, reads like a page from baseball fiction. His chance came by accident when Max Carey, the Pittsburgh veteran, was injured. When Carey returned to the game, Manager McKechnie of the Pirates found Cuyler's services indispensable. His batting, fielding and sparkling base running was an inspiration to the Pirates, who carried the fight to the Giants for the lead in the pennant race.

Cuyler, under the coaching of Carey, developed into one of the greatest base stealers in the league. Carey is leading with 30, with Cuyler and Heathcote of Chicago tied for second place honors with 29 each. Jack Fournier of the Dodgers, leading home run hitter of the league, is leading in the total of 24, while French of the Giants, is setting the pace in scoring, having crossed the plate 90 times, six within the last week.

Other leading batters: Fournier, Brooklyn .344; Young, New York .341; Bressler, Cincinnati .344; Roush, Cincinnati .343; Blades, St. Louis .325; Bottomley, St. Louis .323; High, Brooklyn .321; Kelly, New York .318; Grigsby, Chicago .318.

Vets Near Top

Veterans of the American League are gradually crowding their way toward the top. Following the example of Eddie Collins of the White Sox, Ty Cobb, pilot of the Tigers;

Tris Speaker, leader of the Indians and Harry Heilmann, Detroit slugger have worked themselves up among the leading ten.

Babe Ruth who continues to top the regulars dropped from his 400 mark of a week ago, to 396. How ever, he still has a comfortable lead over Bib Falk of the White Sox, who is in second place with 390. George Sinker, fell out of the 300 class and is way down in the list with an average of .298.

Ruth failed to increase his record of thirty-eight homers, but managed to get an average of one hit a game in his last four contests, giving him 154 hits for a total of 311 bases. Besides his homers his hits include 28 doubles and seven triples. By scoring twice he ran his run getting record to 116.

Cobb had made the greatest number of hits in the league, turning in 181 blows.

Eddie Collins, failed to add to his string of 34 stolen bases, but still holds a safe lead over his rivals.

Other leading batters: Jameson, Cleveland .318; Cobb, Detroit .317; E. Collins, Chicago .311; Shoeny, Chicago .312; Boone, Boston .312; Sprague, Cleveland .310; Heilmann, Detroit .311; Jacobson, St. Louis .312; Gossin, Washington .310; Archdeacon, Chicago .310.

Le Roy Fight Called Off

Fargo, Aug. 23.—Sioux City's fight card scheduled last night had to be postponed until next Friday because Art Hudkins of Omaha, suffered a bad cut over his eye Wednesday night in a bout in his home town. This was the information received here yesterday in a telegram from Jack Hurley of Fargo, LeRoy's manager.

Hurley stated that he would be home Sunday night but that Russia would stay in Sioux City all week training for the Hudkins fight.

Billy Evans Says

The baseball scout plays a big part in the success of every major league ball club.

Although always in the background, his judgment and selection of likely material either makes or breaks a ball club.

The scouts are a unit in the opinion that this season has been one of the most unusual in the history of the game, as far as they are concerned.

Players touted to star have done only fairly well. While others merely regarded as possibilities have gone over big.

This spring, when the pitching of the New York Americans began to falter, a hurry-up call was sent to the scouts for pitching material, capable of stepping right in and helping out.

Naturally the scouts went to the bigger minors for such a brand of pitching. Cliff Markle was purchased from St. Paul of the American Association, just a trifle removed from big league class.

Last season, in that league, he had been a big winner. When the Yankees purchased him this year he had nine straight wins to his credit.

After the Yanks had bought him, I met a half dozen scouts, and all agreed that he was the best looking pitcher in the league for immediate delivery.

Markle knows how to pitch, has had some big league experience, and with a hard-hitting club like the Yankees will win lots of ball games.

Markle's career was decidedly disappointing. He simply couldn't finish a game. Opposing teams picked on his fast ball and passed up the curve. Finally in disgust he quit the club and returned to his home.

The failure of Markle caused the club to issue another hurry-up call to the scouts. Pitching strength was needed at once.

A number of scouts had told me that Al Mamaux, former big leaguer, was the most effective pitcher in the International League. Naturally I wasn't surprised when the announcement was made that New York had bought him.

While Mamaux has done some helpful relief pitching for the Yanks, he hasn't been able to turn in many victories.

All of which merely shows what a tough proposition the scouts are up against in trying to add immediate strength to a club.

New York buys the two best-looking pitchers in two of the fastest minor leagues and doesn't benefit very much.

On the other hand Gaston, with no professional experience, picked up from a semi-pro team, has helped keep the Yanks in the race.

Wingard, an unknown collegian, has gone over big for the St. Louis Browns. Whitehill and Wells, two rookies, have pitched fine ball for Detroit.

It's no soft job to pick likely big leaguers.

FARMERS FAIL TO ESTEEM TEACHERS

New York, Aug. 23.—The rural school is the chief defect in the educational system of this country, according to educators from many states who have been participating in a series of lectures and conferences at the summer session of Columbia University. Lack of properly trained teachers, relatively large illiteracy in the population, child labor, and limited high school opportunity were stressed as handicaps of country life.

Of the 300,000 rural and village teachers in the United States, only 150,000 have completed a high school course, it was brought out by Prof. Mabel Carney of Teachers College. Only 10 percent have finished the eighth grade, and 20 percent the sixth grade.

"The number of one-room rural school buildings in the United States is 189,227," Prof. Carney declared. "The number of children in one-teacher rural schools is 4,000,000, or about 20 percent of the nation's total school enrollment."

Dr. Ernest Burnham of the Kalamazoo, Mich., Normal School said that there was a lack of appreciation of teachers by farmers. The average annual salary of rural teachers was only $720.

INVESTIGATE THE CAUSES OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Geneva, Aug. 23.—The unemployment suffered throughout the world from 1920 to 1923 is closely connected with the periodical crises which have afflicted the working classes and humanity as a whole for a century, according to a report issued by the international labor office, which gives the results of an international inquiry into the subject.

The report remarks that this conclusion is contrary to a fairly widespread idea. It declares that while it is true that the great questions of international relations resulting from the war and the treaties of peace have gravely affected the national economy of many countries, resulting in the complication and aggravation of unemployment, the inquiry indicates that apart from certain exceptions, available statistics show scarcely any correlation between changes in unemployment and the fluctuations in foreign trade.

The report adds that in many countries the period of most intense unemployment was accompanied by a greater volume of exports than at some other date.

Artist Will Travel By Wagon

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 23.—Sight-seeing in a covered wagon, with "Chicago in two years" as the first goal, is the plan of Louis Dana Johnson, a local artist, who has left here with his family on a journey of five or six years.

In a trim gray prairie schooner, Betty Lou, aged 2, plays under the shelter of the canvas. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Barbara, aged 11, hike along the highways. Mr. Johnson expects to "knock off a year" in Chicago to study art. He then will continue to "hit the trail" until he and his family tire of the novelty. The schooner, which he constructed, is fitted with everything necessary for a home and a school.

NEW SEARCH FOR GOLD UNDER WAY IN MONTANA

Helena, Mont., Aug. 23.—Quartz prospectors are roaming the Montana hills, gulches and abandoned mining camps this summer in such numbers as to arouse speculation among the early settlers as to whether the cry of "gold" again may lure hundreds into the areas where few men have ventured since the early sixties.

Free milling ore veins have long since been exploited, and in most cases abandoned by the individual prospector, to be taken over by the larger companies or operated on a small scale by miners. Gold laden sands in the creek beds where old placer camps were located have been panned and repanned, yielding millions in the early sixties until bed rock strata turned the fortune seekers to other fields. Forced to discontinue the placer mining on a large scale, the pioneer prospectors are now enlisting younger blood in the search for quartz, hoping to discover veins of sufficient size to warrant construction of stamp mills and reduction works.

Reports from the early-day camps indicate renewed activity at Virginia City and Alder Gulch, one of the richest of early-day sites, while from Confederate Gulch, 30 miles east of here, come stories of occasional nuggets in sluice boxes.

TRIBUNE WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

A Score of Features to Explain These Results

The Phaeton

Every one who has familiarized himself with the new Chrysler Six and its extraordinary performance is convinced that this car turns the leaf of the automobile calendar many years forward.

The engine design embodies a new type of combustion chamber that burns all the gas. Also a new way of distributing the gas equally to all cylinders. A score of other features must be taken into account to explain why an engine only 3-inch bore by 4 3/4-inch stroke delivers 68 horsepower, top speed well over 70 miles an hour, and a pick-up that is electrifying.

All these things you'll understand better when you ride in the car. You'll find, also, an amazing amount of room, and an ease of handling and parking that is a constant delight.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

Among Chrysler Six features which contribute to its long life and operating economy, is the centrifugal air cleaner which purges the air taken in by the carburetor. This cleaner effectually protects the cylinders and pistons from the entrance of fine, gritty dust. Of equal importance is the Chrysler oil filter, which thoroughly cleans all the oil in the crankcase every 25 miles, and contributes much to smoothness, freedom from carbon, and longer life of rotating and moving parts.

JOHN L. LYONS, MASTER SONG LEADER, COMES

Will Appear at the Eltinge
Theater Here on Monday Night

John Henry Lyons, the "Billy Sunday of Melody," is coming to Bismarck. He will appear at the Eltinge theatre Monday night.

"General Sing Em," as he was called by the boys of the Ninety-first division, A. E. F., has the record of leading more "Sings" than anyone else. He has led more than 10,000,000 persons along the song route.

To him also goes the credit for leading the world's largest "Sing," when 50,000 persons packed the Tacoma Stadium.

When the late President Harding was on his last tour, John Henry was his song leader and entertained the crowds at the meetings. Mr. Lyons composed the national song book for the last G. O. P. campaign, in 1920.

Manager Dale Simon recently attended a Rotary luncheon in Minneapolis where Mr. Lyons was present, and he considers himself fortunate in being able to get Mr. Lyons here.

"General Sing Em" celebrated his 12,000th sing at the Capitol theatre, St. Paul, recently.

The feature picture at the Eltinge Monday night will be "The White Moth" with Barbara LeMay and Conway Tearle starring.

TWO-THIRDS OF SEED LOANS IN N. D. PAID

U. S. Department of Agriculture
Has Collected Total of $2,425,879.11

Grand Forks, Aug. 23.—Out of a total of 32,000 accounts, the Federal Seed Loan Office of the Department of Agriculture with headquarters at Grand Forks, North Dakota, has collected a total of $2,425,879.11 on the principal and interest on outstanding 1921 and 1922 loans, leaving a total of $1,553,069.74 on the principal unpaid.

The territory under the jurisdiction of the Seed Loan Office comprises the states of North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington and 65.5 percent of the principal on outstanding accounts has been collected according to L. E. White, Administrative Officer in charge.

The amount of loans made in 1921 was $1,057,407.29 and of this $1,237,855.17 or 63.2 percent of the principal has been collected. The 1922 loan amounted to $1,480,106.63 and of this $1,046,588.00 or 71 percent has been collected.

Approximately 8,000 of the 32,000 accounts remain unpaid. The Department points out that while it was comparatively lenient with borrowers in 1923 because of the unfavorable crops, this year there will be a real effort made to clean up the obligations, the present crop prospects being as to warrant preparations for large collections.

It is also pointed out that while collections were not greatly forced last year, there was considerable attention given to the matter of security for the extended loans, and their collection is therefore comparatively better assured.

According to Mr. White, it is the desire of the Department to have these loans paid up by the end of this year and to accomplish this purpose the office will conduct an intensive collection campaign. Arrangements have been made to place men in the collection fields of the territory in which the loans were made, shortly after harvest begins.

Boys and girls today are better in health, intelligence and physical strength than in any previous generation, says an English doctor.
